CONGRESSMEN AGREE TO ADJOURN; DRAFT, FOREIGN AID BILLS PASS

Quakers Hold Key For GOP

Candidates Start Vote Maneuvers

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— Four Republican presidential possibilities come piling into town today to jump into the pre-convention maneuvering for ballots.

And all of them will be eyeing a Pennsylvania caucus that could be a big factor — perhaps the deciding one — in determining how long the convention lasts and whom it picks for the presidential race.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York parades into town around noon. Coming up from Washington are Senators Robert A. Taft of Ohio and Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan. Vandenberg's position is a question mark.

Moving in from California will be Gov. Earl Warren and a delegation pledged to keep 53 votes on the line for him.

Of all the top-spot contenders, only former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota was on the scene last night. He told a news conference 300 delegates are war veterans and he will get a majority of them on the first ballot.

BROWNELL CONFIDENT

Dewey's campaign manager, Herbert Brownell, repeated a prediction that Dewey will have more votes than anyone else on the first ballot next Wednesday or Thursday.

"I reiterate our claim with more emphasis than ever that Dewey will be nominated, without a deadlock, on an early ballot," he told a news conference.

The way it looks now to many delegates rubbing elbows in hotel corridors and the customary smoke-filled rooms, the first convention vote may be something of a standoff between Dewey and Taft, with perhaps an edge to Dewey.

Stassen himself says he will trail along in third spot on the Governor 'Skims' Hat Of Vandenberg In Ring

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) — Gov. Kim Sigler of Michigan said Saturday he knows that Senator Arthur Vandenberg is "available as a candidate for the presidency should that be the demand of the people."

The head of the 41-vote Michigan delegation read a statement to a news conference saying: "I feel this convention will demonstrate that demand."

Vandenberg's position has been something of a puzzle. But Sigler apparently did everything but actually sail the senator's hat into the ring.

Ohio River Boats Collide

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Two speed boats collided in the Ohio river here Saturday and one woman was believed drowned as one craft sank immediately. At least 19 survivors were rescued.

The missing woman was believed to be Miss Kitty Wing, an entertainer at the Glenn Rendezvous, Newport.

Arrest Made By 'Intuition'

The intuition of a state highway patrolman led to the arrest yesterday of a 16-year-old Richland county youth in connection with the theft of an automobile.

Patrolman John Kark stopped the boy about 1 p. m. yesterday on Route 42 east of Mansfield because he thought the youth was driving in a suspicious manner.

Held on a charge of operating a motor vehicle without a driver's license, he faced a second charge of operating a vehicle without the owner's consent when a car reported stolen turned out to be the vehicle the youth was driving, patrolmen said.

The car is owned by Jack Middlebrook of 564 Lily street, who said it was stolen from a Wayne street parking place Friday night.

Seccaium Leveled By Fire

A spectacular $85,000 fire yesterday swept historic Seccaium Amusement park, five miles east of Bucyrus on Route 19, leveling the main park pavilion, a nearby cottage and a two-story picnic building. The blaze started about 11 a.m. when a bolt of lightning struck the main pavilion.

Eyewitnesses said the buildings were consumed in less than an hour. Bucyrus firemen were hampered by an inadequate water supply and were forced to abandon their attempts to save the amusement center.

R. A. Jolly of Bucyrus, manager of the park, said $10,000 of the loss was to equipment in the buildings while the remainder was property damage. The pavilion housed the dance hall, taproom and offices.

Equipment destroyed included three pianos, a $3,000 penny arcade, four electric refrigerators, an electric stove and a number of juke boxes. Furniture in the cottage, which was occupied by Carl Jolly, brother of the manager, was saved by neighbors.

As if inadequate water was not enough, firemen and spectators had to dodge sky rockets and roman candles, part of a fireworks display stored in the pavilion for July 4 and Labor Day celebrations.

NEW PARK PLANNED

Jolly said Saturday afternoon that plans for erection of a new park would be made immediately and that the new building should be opened sometime next summer.

The park was originally opened Aug. 16, 1899 and was a favorite recreation spot for people in several counties. At one time regular buses transported crowds to and from the park.

An old timer, looking over the ruins, said he remembered the day when Carrie Nation, famous hatchet-wielding temperance crusader, "raided the bar" and broke the place up.

At one time the park featured cock fighting, which since has been declared illegal. The 59-acre park also contained a boating lagoon and an abandoned roller coaster.

For a number of years, "name" bands have played one-night stands at the park. Recently, however, local orchestras have provided music for dancing.

'YOU KNOW WHAT DAY IT IS, DAD!—The three youngsters peering around the newell post at their home, 914 Burger avenue, aren't too afraid that dad—Frank Graszel—is actually going to apply that hairbrush, today of all days. Because this is Father's day, and a friendly smile is likely to replace that stern look at any moment, for Frank's three boys, Dickie, 9 (top), Junior, 10 (center), and Tommie.—(Photo by George Petrovic)

Coal Inquiry Board Ready

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Truman set up a Taft-Hartley board of inquiry Saturday in an effort to wipe out the threat of another nationwide soft coal strike next month.

Impressed with the need for swift action, the President asked the three-man board to report by Wednesday. The coal contract expires June 30. The miners begin a 10-day vacation June 26.

Appointed to the board were David E. Cole, Paterson, N. J., lawyer and labor arbitrator, chairman; E. Wight Bakke, professor of economics at Yale university, and Waldo Amanuel Fisher, professor of industrial relations at the University of Pennsylvania.

The President must have a report from the board before instructing Attorney General Clark to ask for another court injunction to halt a strike. The type of injunction called for in the Taft-Hartley act would delay a walkout for 80 days — if the court finds that it is a new dispute.

The miners already are under injunction not to resume their pension strike, which shut down the mines for four to six weeks in March and April. The court would have to rule that the contract dispute was an entirely new fight — otherwise the miners could not be restrained after the current injunction runs out in early July.

Truman Signs Seventy Bills

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Truman Saturday signed 70 bills accumulated during his 15-day swing through the West.

Presidential press secretary Charles G. Ross told reporters that 10 more measures passed in Mr. Truman's absence now are on the President's desk and still others are en route.

Navy's Ship Plan Altered

Bill Signed By President

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Truman Saturday signed a bill authorizing him to halt construction work on 13 Navy warships, including the battleship Kentucky.

The act nullifies for these ships a provision of an earlier law requiring that war vessels which were more than 20 per cent complete as of March 1, 1946 be completed.

A Senate armed services committee report recommending approval of the bill said it would have the effect of suspending present obligations against the treasury amounting to more than $300,000,000 in construction costs.

The report added that it is intended that "a portion of this sum will be used, if appropriated, to institute a new shipbuilding and conversion program of advance-design ships."

The appropriation, which has already been made, includes funds for the start of construction on a new super aircraft carrier capable of carrying jet bombers.

In addition to the Kentucky, the President is authorized to stop the construction of the battle cruiser Hawaii, two destroyer escorts, seven destroyers and two submarines.

C. of C. Reports on Survey

Combine of Fund Drives Favored

Three out of every four contributors to Mansfield's health and welfare agencies would like to have most of the present fund raising drives combined, a survey conducted by the Chamber of Commerce, the Retail Merchants, the Mansfield Manufacturers' Club and organized labor showed yesterday.

H. B. Soulen, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said that of the questionnaires returned, 77 per cent were in favor of the Community Chest expanding to include most of the health and welfare drives, while 23 per cent preferred the present system of many drives.

The survey was conducted entirely by mail, Soulen said, with 850 questionnaires sent to members of the Manufacturers' club, Retail Merchants association and to all advance gift contributors of the Mansfield Community Chest. The blanks also went to citizens who are key-workers in most of the drives conducted in the city and to men and women who serve on boards and committees of many of the health and welfare agencies. They were sent to heads of labor unions which contribute to most of the drives.

One of the most interesting factors revealed by the survey was that of all those who wanted a more complete federation of fund raising agencies, 90 per cent believed the combined and increased goal could be raised in one drive, while 95.5 per cent said they would be willing to increase their contributions to the Community Chest in order to meet the larger goal.

ASK EXPANDED CHEST

The questionnaires returned to the Chamber of Commerce showed 89 per cent in favor of an expanded Community Chest, with 11 per cent opposed. Most of those opposed felt the money needed could not be raised in one campaign. Retail Merchants were divided 85 per cent in favor of a larger federation of drives under the Chest banner, with 15 per cent disagreeing.

Labor contributors were more evenly divided, with 52 per cent asking for one drive a year and 48 per cent approving the pres-

Tiny Baby Dies After Eight Days

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa. — (AP)—Tiny Richard Allan Miller, a 25-ounce baby, died yesterday in a hospital after eight days of survival on a medicine dropper diet.

Doctors at Citizens General hospital where the child was kept in an incubator reported the infant was born June 10 three months prematurely.

TB Sanatorium Dream Comes True

Richland county's dream of a modern, adequate tuberculosis sanatorium is about to come true.

Excavating for an 84-bed hospital on State Route 39 southeast of the city is scheduled to begin tomorrow with ceremonies set for 11 a. m. Mrs. Hattie Hunt, who donated the site for the sanatorium, has been asked to turn the first shovelful of earth.

Although written approval of the building project had not been received late yesterday from the Ohio Health department, Dr. John S. Hattery, chairman of the T. B. building commission, said he had telephone confirmation from the department Thursday and unless another unexpected obstacle appears everything was in readiness for the ground-breaking ceremonies.

The new sanatorium, which will cost well over $800,000, will replace the outmoded, cramped building on Lexington avenue just inside the city limits.

Richland county voters passed two bond issues — for $300,000 and $400,000 — to finance the building program. The county then received a $104,000 allocation of federal funds to help equip the building.

The $300,000 bond issue was voted in November, 1945.

COSTS CLIMB

Before construction could be started, rising building costs proved such a stumbling block that by January, 1947, county commissioners and building commission members were convinced that it would take at least $400,000 more to construct the sanatorium according to original plans. The additional funds were approved by voters last fall.

When building bids were opened last Feb. 27, it was found that they totaled almost the amount of the bond issues and equipment and furnishings had to be considered. Then it was learned that federal aid could be obtained for one-third of the cost of the equipment.

Application was made and on May 10, Dr. Hattery received word that a grant up to $104,566 would be given.

Meanwhile new bids were sought and when they were opened on May 19, Louis Zahn was given the contract for general construction. The lowest combination of bids was $642,643. Equipment will boost the cost beyond $800,000.

The new building is expected to be completed in about a year. The county has a lease on the present sanatorium in Mansfield until next Dec. 6.

Inquiry Into FCC Approved

Quiz Opponents Beaten Down

A congressional investigation of the Federal Communications commission was voted overwhelmingly in the House of Representatives at Washington yesterday afternoon.

As the Congress rushed forward in its effort to reach adjournment, the House approved the resolution, offered by Rep. Forest A. Harness, Indiana Republican, despite efforts of Rep. Adolph J. Sabath, (D.-Ill.) to block the action, Associated Press reported from Washington.

In urging passage of the bill to bring the spotlight upon activities of the FCC, Rep. Harness told the House that the FCC's licensing operations had aroused "widespread apprehension," and should be investigated immediately.

Figuring largely in the storm that has been brewing around the FCC for many months is the action of the FCC in granting numerous radio licenses to Edward Lamb, Toledo lawyer who has an expansive record of association with organizations which have been listed as communistically inclined or "communist front" groups. Lamb had received a permit for a station in Mansfield but surrendered the license here, along with one for Springfield, during the past week.

LONG-NEEDED, CLAIM

But Rep. Wolverton (R.-N.J.), chairman of the Interstate com-

Cliff Victim Still Alive

Father Faces Murder Charge

EVERETT, Wash. —(AP)— Four-year-old Mary Bernice Williams, who survived a night on a cliff-side ledge after being left for dead, was still clinging to life Saturday night.

Meanwhile, a "holding charge" of first degree murder was filed in justice court, accusing the child's father, Wayne L. Williams, of bludgeoning to death his 27-year-old wife, Hallie Lucile, the child's mother.

The woman's battered body and the severely injured child were found by sheriff's officers early Friday after Williams led them to an isolated spot southwest of Everett.

Sheriff Tom Warnock said Williams signed a statement that he bludgeoned his wife to death and pushed her body over the cliff after long and bitter quarreling, and that he also beat the girl with a rock when she ran up screaming in protest against the mistreatment of her mother.

Prosecutor Phil Sheridan said the formal first degree murder information will be filed in Superior court Monday.

Hospital attendants said Mary Bernice has a chance to survive. She suffered a skull fracture, fractured collarbone, shock, exposure and loss of blood.

Nurses said, however, it was too early to say the girl definitely will recover.

Papers Make 'Final' Offer

CHICAGO —(AP)— The Chicago Newspaper Publishers association said Saturday that it will hold no more meetings with representatives of striking printers "so long as they insist on devices to evade the law."

The association did not elaborate on its statement. Union officials were unavailable for comment.

The association, which represents the five major dailies against which the printers have been striking since November, has offered a $9 a week and other concessions in what it termed a "final" contract proposal and a "clarification" of it to the union.

Eleventh Hour Voting Settles Major Issues

Call Begins In 90 Days

WASHINGTON — (AP)— Congress completed its work last night on a bill to draft young men aged 19 through 25 for peacetime military service. It only remains for President Truman to sign it into law.

A roll call vote of 259 to 136 in the House sent the bill to the White House on the last scheduled night of the 80th Congress.

It earlier had to survive a night-long Senate filibuster by Senator Taylor of Idaho, Henry A. Wallace's third party running mate, and Senator Langer (R-ND).

The Senate, after Taylor had been elbowed from the floor, passed the compromise by voice vote Saturday morning.

Last night the House took it up. Typical of the hour's debate there were these stands:

By Rep. Wadsworth (R-NY), author and co-sponsor of the World War II draft law:

"What goes on here tonight will be known in country after country around the world tomorrow.

"The protection of our liberty involves sacrifice, and of course this bill involves some sacrifice. But I think it is a sacrifice very well worth making."

By Rep. Mitchell (R-Ind), that the measure is desired only by "the brass hats." Mitchell said there are from 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 combat-trained veterans in this country who will fight again if necessary.

EXPIRES IN 2 YEARS

The bill passed last night would expire in two years, unless extended.

All day long, until about 6:30 p.m. (EST), the House had left the draft measure lie idle while it concerned itself with other things.

Principal changes under the compromise are:

Service for 21 months for those called up, as compared to one year under the House bill and two years under the Senate's.

Immediate effectiveness, with nobody to be inducted for 90 days, the latter provision a concession to the House which had wanted delay until Feb. 1, 1949.

Elimination of a Senate provision for a special draft of doctors.

Permission for 161,000 18-year-olds to volunteer for one year of service with the regular forces, as a substitute for universal military training.

A boost of 2,005,882, the House figures, in authorized strength for the armed forces, divided into 837,000 for the Army, 666,882 for the Navy and Marines and 502,000 for the Air Force.

Elimination of a Senate proposal to enlist 25,000 aliens who could have become U. S. citizens after five years.

To Overcome Wanderlust, Get a Herse

CHICAGO—(AP)—Drive a hearse and see the country.

Four young women from Los Angeles are spending their vacation doing just that.

The girls, Evelyn Benson, Marie Sloan, Harriet Clugston and Billie Cutler worked out a plan with the California Hearse service of Los Angeles, where Miss Benson is a secretary, to drive four new hearses from Freeport, Ill., to the west coast.

The company flew the girls to Chicago. They will pick up the hearses in Freeport Monday.

Miss Cutler, who is in show business, said they plan to take about five days for the trip.

"We know people clear across the country, and they will be looking for us," she added.

She said that as a member of the USO she had driven ambulances "all over Germany. But I never expected to be driving a hearse."

Miss Sloan and Miss Clugston are employed in the Los Angeles county office.

World Help Fund Hiked

WASHINGTON — (AP)— Congress approved early today the compromise $6,030,710,228 foreign aid appropriation bill after congressional leaders had already agreed to adjourn subject to recall by its GOP chiefs or President Truman.

Under the aid compromise the program is set at 15 months, but President Truman would be authorized to spend the money in 12 months if he thought it necessary to achieve the objective of the program.

In that way the Senate held on to a 12 months spending program. The House had called for a 15 months spending period.

Senator Taft (R.-Ohio), chairman of the Senate Republican steering committee, told reporters the two Houses would quit after last night's session under a resolution setting Dec. 31 as the date for a next meeting unless there is a special session.

RECALL POSSIBLE

"We might recall Congress between the conventions, after the conventions, or even after the elections," Taft said in answer to questions on the leadership's plans.

President Truman also could call the lawmakers back.

Regardless of what the Republican chiefs might do, many Democrats indicated a belief the President would summon a special session to act on housing legislation and a long-range farm plan.

Taft said housing was "out" for this session after failure even to get conferees together to work out a compromise between Senate and House plans. He said a farm bill was still a possibility.

Under the Republican adjournment plan the lawmakers could be called back by House Speaker Martin (Mass.), House Republican Leader Halleck (Ind.), Acting Senate Majority Leader Wherry (Neb.), and Senator Vandenberg (Mich.), president of the Senate.

The Senate voted pay increases for postal and civil service workers, but rejected raises for "upper bracket" government employes, including cabinet officers.

Prior to passing the measure by a voice vote, the Senate tabled a motion by Senator Fulbright (D.-Ark.) to add an amendment repealing the tax on oleomargarine.

CLEVELAND — (AP)—An attorney for Elmer S. Whiting, 43, said Saturday he would fight attempts to extradite him to San Francisco to face extortion charges.

Charles E. Smart of Canton, O., the attorney, said a hearing had been set for Thursday before U.S. Commissioner Charles M. Ball in Canton.

Whiting is accused of extorting about $25,000 over a 10-year period from Joseph J. Cohen, San Francisco race track operator. He was arrested by FBI agents Friday in Canton, and is being held here under $50,000 bail set by Ball.

Give Funds For Anti-Fly Campaign

Willard C. of C. and Council Donate $100

WILLARD—At a meeting this week of the Willard Chamber of Commerce, members endorsed a fly eradication campaign for Willard and voted to contribute up to $100. The city council has agreed to give a like amount.

The action was taken after Max M. Phillips, county sanitarian, had explained that spraying of places in the downtown section would probably eliminate the flies. Fred Heisler offered to donate the spraying machine.

President Harlow Stapf and Secretary Ray A. Snook reported that a vast amount of information on labor and sites had been furnished prospective industries. They found that each day 300 people leave Willard to work in other towns, and they have reported that Willard is being favorably considered.

Secretary Snook was authorized to attempt to bring the next firemen's convention to Willard and to negotiate for any other conventions.

A complaint was made about delays in issuing auto drivers' licenses at Norwalk and it was voted to ask that an examiner be sent here for one day each week.

It was pointed out that July 4 comes on Sunday, so it was agreed that the Monday following would be observed as a legal holiday.

Ashlander Started at Age of Nine

Collection Ranges From Buttons to Books

MRS. ADA DOERRER . . . with part of her collection.

ASHLAND — A small library of old books acquired as a child of nine has led Mrs. Maud Pastor of Ashland to the collection of items ranging from buttons to calling card cases of the Victorian era.

Valued at several thousand dollars, the collection includes decorated tinware, beaded bags, buttons, books of etiquette from the Victorian age and calling card cases of the same era.

The largest collection is her 300 volumes of 19th century etiquette, which give a very vivid recollection of the Victorian age. Two of her favorites are "The Young Lady's Friend," published in 1837, and "The Laws of Etiquette," issued in 1838.

Some of the rules of etiquette would seem very strange in this day and age.

"The Laws of Etiquette states, "As a general rule, never cut any one in the street. Even political and steamboat acquaintances should be noticed by the slightest movement. If they presume to converse with you, or stop you to introduce their companion, it is then time to use your eye-glass and say, "I never knew you."

GOOD ADVICE GIVEN

Even in Victorian times, the writer seemed to consider the following advice necessary: "A married man should never allow himself to accept an invitation from a woman, in which his wife is not included." This is classed under "miscellaneous."

In preparation for a funeral, the author says, "When any member of a family is dead, it is customary to send intelligence of the misfortune to all who have been connected with the deceased. An invitation of this sort should never be refused. You render yourself at the house exactly one hour after the time specified."

One of the rules for traveling was, "When travelling, shun women with painted faces and white kid gloves."

Much of the Victorian etiquette deals with visiting — morning visits — evening calls — visits of ceremony and those of informal custom, and among the very important accessories were the calling cards.

One of the essentials was the calling card case. It was while Mrs. Pastor was browsing in a Boston book store, searching for more Victorian etiquette, that she discovered the nucleus around which she has built her latest and most fascinating collection.

The hundred or more calling card cases in her collection include the mother-of-pearl, the ivory with delicately carved designs, papier-mache, tortoise shell, silver and combinations. Their fragile beauty can not be shown in photographs. Words can not adequately describe them. To see the most simple design stirs the imagination and brings fanciful stories to mind.

CASES NOT DUPLICATED

Many of the beautifully carved ivory cases were created in India and China for the English and other European trade. There seem to be no duplicates, though some show a resemblance in design that might indicate the same artist.

One of Mrs. Pastor's favorites is an ivory case that depicts scenes at the court of a Chinese nobleman. It has minutely carved open work as part of the doors and galleries. The nobleman is attended by his servants and his horse is in readiness with its bridle and saddle. Court ladies seated under the cherry trees. There are thirty-eight perfectly carved figures.

She possesses two of papier mache, one of which has the much sought light yellow background. The other is inlaid with mother-of-pearl, in delicate shades of rose in the flowers and green in the leaves, and delicately scrolled in gold.

One of the daintiest is of silver filigree threads. The design represents authority and power in the combination of phoenix and dragon. The filigree is raised above a central panel of silver. The sides are overlaid with garlands of cloisonne flowers in pale, turquoise blue.

Mrs. Pastor is also the author of many articles which describe her varied collections.

Pomerene Hospital Raises Rates

Pre-School Clinic Planned In Homes

MILLERSBURG — Pomerene Memorial hospital has announced that room rates have been advanced.

Private rooms were increased from $8 to $10 per day, semi-private rooms from $6.50 to $7.50 and ward beds from $5 to $5.50. Nursery charges for babies was raised to $2 per day.

The hospital announced that the increase was due to the necessity of meeting higher operating costs.

The Holmes county health department plans to offer a free pre-school clinic to children entering kindergarten and first grade in Holmes county schools this fall.

The clinic will consist of a complete physical examination which will be conducted by the doctors of Holmes county in conjunction with the county health department. The purpose of this clinic is to discuss and bring to the parents' attention any defects that might be found so that corrections can be made before the child enters school this fall.

The clinic will be conducted during the weeks of July 5 and 12. The exact time and place for these clinics will depend upon the number of children to be examined in the various parts of the county .

Letters have been mailed out by A. J. Earney, county health commissioner, with an enclosed card upon which the parents will indicate whether they plan to bring their child or children to the clinic. Those who signify intentions of attending the clinic will receive notice as to the time and place that the clinics are to be held.

The average golfer in the News-Journal A league takes 40.5 strokes to complete nine holes of golf. This and other figures go to prove the A league plays just about as tough a golf as you can find anywhere outside the pro ranks.

Only a handful of the city's really good golfers do not compete in the circuit. Most of the standouts out of the fold are Westbrook members, but the top golfer of the league, Al Hager, is a Westbrook man.

Hager in four rounds has a 36 average, which is just the number of strokes old Mr. Golf planned for the Possum Run course. Even with such a respectful average, Al has been beaten twice. Last week he shot a 38 to fall before Bernie Mathias and earlier lost to Jerry Rosenberg.

We think the most convincing proof of the class of the circuit, is that Adam Mayer, the "poorest" golfer in the league carries a 43.7 average—a mighty respectable figure at that. Along with a legion of others, we wish it belonged to us.

Other figures on the league complied by league president Pete Zeides show Pete Thoma as runnerup to Hager with a 36.8 average, followed by Bernie Mathias, 37.4; Ed Blonston 38; Ray Malaska 38.2; Jerry Rosenberg 38 6; All are No. 1 men on the four man teams.

Red Dillon, Sid Mathias and Gene Lichtle are the top No. 2 men, all carrying an average of 38.8. Ted Muntan tops the No. 3 man with 40 while Angelo Taddeo is the best of the No. 4 men with 41.4. The average leadoff man shoots 38, the average No. 2 man, 39.1; the average No. 3 man 41.9; and the No. 4 men 42.4.

Hard luck man of the league is Dick Gaubautz, who shooting a 40 average in No. 2 position, has failed to win a match.

The largest delegation of local men to play in any out-of-town tournament this year will compete in the National Public Links qualifier at Cleveland, June 27. Eight Mansfielders submitted entry fees before last Monday's deadline.

Representing Possum Run in the joust will be Bernie Mathias, Pete Zeides, and Sid Mathias, while Coolridge will send its Champion Ray Malaska, with Pete Thoma, Frank Jocha, Nick Komjenovich, and Angelo Taddeo.

Thirty six holes of medal play over the Seneca Golf course will comprise the qualifier. The number which get to advance to the National Public links at Atlanta, will depend on the total number of entrants in the sectional qualifier.

The National tournament will be match play over the North Fulton park course at Atlanta.

Saying that the putting greens on the big tournament courses are fast is putting it mildly if you take the word of Al Hager. Hager, just returned from the National Open at Los Angeles, told us that he could easily understand how the pros sink some of the long putts that they do.

"Of course it didn't work that way for me," Al told us. "I just couldn't stop in time."

Although he got many thrills of the tournament, Al seems to get his biggest kick out of telling about one of his puts that went sour. He had been told that all greens rolled toward the ocean but one in particular looked the other way. Putting from ten feet back Al allowed for about a two-foot roll and got it.

But from there on he believed what he was told—the putt rolled the wrong way and Al missed by four feet.

Boston Booms To Win Over Tigers, 9-7

DETROIT — (AP)—The booming Boston Red Sox got away to a 9-1 lead over Detroit yesterday and needed it all, as they ran their winning streak to four games with a narrow 9-to-7 decision over the Tigers.

Detroit, held to five hits by big Jack Kramer in eight innings, came to life in the ninth after waiting out a 33-minute delay because of rain. The Tigers scored four runs after two were out in their last turn at bat and had men on first and third with the tying runs when Boo Ferriss, working in relief, got George Kell on a pop fly to end the game.

Boston's 12th win in 15 games moved the Red Sox within a half game of the first division.

A walk and three straight hits, including Stant Spence's three-run homer, chased Virgil Trucks from the box trailing 4-0 in the first inning before he retired a man. Hal White was touched for the other five Boston runs in the fourth, two of them scoring on Johnny Perky's first home run of the season.

Minnesota Wins NCAA Track Title

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

MINNEAPOLIS — (AP)— Minnesota captured the national collegiate track and field championship for the first time in the 27 year history of the meet today as this country's undergraduate spikesters selected 108 of their best performers for the coming Olympic tryouts.

The surprising Gophers won two of the 18 events and placed in seven others to amass a total of 46 points before 15,563 fans.

Southern California's favored Trojans finished in second place with 41½ points. Even a double sprint triumph by the great Mel Patton, one of them achieved in world record time, couldn't lift the Trojans to the team championship they have won a dozen times in the past.

CARRIES BIG LOAD

It was Fortune Gordien who carried the major load for the Gophers. The big Minnesota weight man won the discus, an event he is expected to dominate in the Olympics, and placed second in the shot put.

Behind Minnesota and Southern California came the University of Texas with 40 points, while the University of Illinois, defending champion and winner of three of the last four team titles, finished fourth with 34¼ points.

Other leaders in the team scrap were California, 19¼ points; Ohio state and Michigan, 18 each; Stanford, 17¾; Northwestern, 16; Rhode Island State, 15¾, and Texas A. and M., 14.

Patton sped to victory in both the 100 and 200 meter dashes to become the only double winner of the meet. He scored over Pacific coast champion Don Anderson of California and flying Charley Parker of Texas in 10.4 seconds in the century.

Then in the 200, run around a curve, the Trojan whirlwind flew home with three yards to spare in 20.7 seconds.

EQUALS RECORD

It equalled the world record for the distance around a turn, set by Jesse Owens of Ohio State in the 1936 Olympics. But a tail wind of more than six miles on the home straight away probably cost him an official share of the mark.

Gordien's triumph, on a throw of 164 feet, 6½ inches, was his third straight discus success in this meet. Charley Fonville of Michigan repeated as shot put champ, although his toss of 54 feet, 7 inches, was below his better previous efforts this season.

Mal Whitfield, Ohio State, dethroned his teammate, Bill Clifford to win the 800-meter run in 1:51.1.

Pirates Takes Temporary Tie For Top Spot

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates hopped into a temporary tie for the National league lead yesterday afternoon as they scored three times in the ninth inning on only one hit to defeat the Philadelphia Phillies, 7 to 6.

It was the sixth straight victory for the Bucs and the third successive triumph for Rookie Bob Chesnes, who has yet to be defeated.

The Phils socked Chesnes for 12 safeties and held an apparently safe 6-4 lead going into the ninth, but Walt Dubiel, pitching in relief of Schoolboy Rowe, promptly ran into a peck of trouble.

WILD ONE HURTS

He gave up a single to Johnny Hopp and then walked Frank Gustine. Dixie Walker sacrificed and reached first when Dick Sisler dropped the throw. Ralph Kiner's run producing fly brought Kenny Heintzelman in to pitch. He promptly uncorked a wild pitch, allowing the tying run to score.

The winning counter came across the plate on Max West's pinch-hit fly to right. Kirby Higbe replaced Chesnes on the mound in the ninth and held the Phils hitless.

The defeat was the fifth straight for the faltering Phillies.

Locke, who fired a pair of 65's for 130 in his first two rounds, gained four strokes on the field despite his comparatively calm 70 yesterday.

John Bulla of Phoenix, with three 71's; Skip Alexander of Lexington, N. C., and Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago were tied for second with 213 aggregates. Alexander fashioned a 72 while Mangrum posted a 35-33—68 for the lowest third round.

The 30-year-old pro from Johannesburg added the 70, one under par for the 6,587-yard course, to pull up at the three-quarter mark 13 strokes under regulation figures.

Locke, who fired a pair of 65's for 130 in his first two rounds, gained four strokes on the field despite his comparatively calm 70 yesterday.

John Bulla of Phoenix, with three 71's; Skip Alexander of Lexington, N. C., and Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago were tied for second with 213 aggregates Alexander fashioned a 72 while Mangrum posted a 35-33—68 for the lowest third round.

Kramer, Riggs Reach Finals

FOREST HILLS, N. Y. —(AP)— Jack Kramer of Los Angeles and Bobby Riggs of Altadena, Calif., today gained the final round of the 21st annual national professional tennis championships before 8,000 noisy fans at the Westside Club stadium.

Riggs, top-seeded defending champion, repeated his straight-sets triumph of last year over fourth-ranked Frank Kovacs of Oakland, Calif., winning easily, 6-3, 6-2, 7-5.

Kramer, seeded second, outlasted third-seeded Don Budge of Hollywood, runnerup to Riggs the past two years. The scores of the match which took place two hours and five minutes were 6-4, 8-10, 3-6, 6-0.

Minnesota Wins NCAA Track Title

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

MINNEAPOLIS — (AP)— Minnesota captured the national collegiate track and field championship for the first time in the 27 year history of the meet today as this country's undergraduate spikesters selected 108 of their best performers for the coming Olympic tryouts.

The surprising Gophers won two of the 18 events and placed in seven others to amass a total of 46 points before 15,563 fans.

Southern California's favored Trojans finished in second place with 41½ points. Even a double sprint triumph by the great Mel Patton, one of them achieved in world record time, couldn't lift the Trojans to the team championship they have won a dozen times in the past.

CARRIES BIG LOAD

It was Fortune Gordien who carried the major load for the Gophers. The big Minnesota weight man won the discus, an event he is expected to dominate in the Olympics, and placed second in the shot put.

Behind Minnesota and Southern California came the University of Texas with 40 points, while the University of Illinois, defending champion and winner of three of the last four team titles, finished fourth with 34¼ points.

Other leaders in the team scrap were California, 19¼ points; Ohio state and Michigan, 18 each; Stanford, 17¾; Northwestern, 16; Rhode Island State, 15¾, and Texas A. and M., 14.

Patton sped to victory in both the 100 and 200 meter dashes to become the only double winner of the meet. He scored over Pacific coast champion Don Anderson of California and flying Charley Parker of Texas in 10.4 seconds in the century.

Then in the 200, run around a curve, the Trojan whirlwind flew home with three yards to spare in 20.7 seconds.

EQUALS RECORD

It equalled the world record for the distance around a turn, set by Jesse Owens of Ohio State in the 1936 Olympics. But a tail wind of more than six miles on the home straight away probably cost him an official share of the mark.

Gordien's triumph, on a throw of 164 feet, 6½ inches, was his third straight discus success in this meet. Charley Fonville of Michigan repeated as shot put champ, although his toss of 54 feet, 7 inches, was below his better previous efforts this season.

Mal Whitfield, Ohio State, dethroned his teammate, Bill Clifford to win the 800-meter run in 1:51.1.

Pirates Takes Temporary Tie For Top Spot

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates hopped into a temporary tie for the National league lead yesterday afternoon as they scored three times in the ninth inning on only one hit to defeat the Philadelphia Phillies, 7 to 6.

It was the sixth straight victory for the Bucs and the third successive triumph for Rookie Bob Chesnes, who has yet to be defeated.

The Phils socked Chesnes for 12 safeties and held an apparently safe 6-4 lead going into the ninth, but Walt Dubiel, pitching in relief of Schoolboy Rowe, promptly ran into a peck of trouble.

WILD ONE HURTS

He gave up a single to Johnny Hopp and then walked Frank Gustine. Dixie Walker sacrificed and reached first when Dick Sisler dropped the throw. Ralph Kiner's run producing fly brought Kenny Heintzelman in to pitch. He promptly uncorked a wild pitch, allowing the tying run to score.

The winning counter came across the plate on Max West's pinch-hit fly to right. Kirby Higbe replaced Chesnes on the mound in the ninth and held the Phils hitless.

The defeat was the fifth straight for the faltering Phillies.

County Tries Forum Plan

Residents Develop Five-Way Campaign

SOMERVILLE, N. J.—(AP)—A New Jersey county peopled by farmers, factory hands and millionaires is trying a formula of being neighborly to solve its problems.

"We've been growing too much apart," explains the father of the idea, Advertising Executive Gerald B. Meynell. "Folks just don't know one another's problems."

If people understood each other better, he argues, there wouldn't be so many problems. There wouldn't be so many disputes either.

"And that goes for the world," The idea of a neighborliness campaign started over lunch a couple of months ago. Meynell he says.

and Sampson Smith, supervising principal of Somerville schools, decided people don't think enough about each other.

The talk led to a meeting of 75 civic leaders. The committee quickly expanded to 800. The campaign took the theme "The World We Want."

DIVERSE INTERESTS

The county has wealthy estates in the northern part, booming industrial areas in the south, with broad, rich farmlands in between.

"We thought if we could yet together those diverse interests, maybe there is hope for the world getting a little closer together," Maynell said.

TAKES INTERNSHIP — Dr. William R. Houston, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Houston, 456 Park avenue west, will leave this week for New York, where he has accepted an internship at the Brooklyn Methodist hospital. Dr. Houston, who received his medical degree June 16 at Western Reserve university, is a 1944 graduate of Ohio State university. His father is a retired assistant postmaster of the Mansfield post office.

A five-way campaign was planned, including three county-wide forums; volunteer speakers and union groups, town meetings, open houses, and a display of historic antiques.

Well-known speakers like Dr. Benjamin A. Cohen, assistant secretary general of the United Nations, spoke at the first general forum.

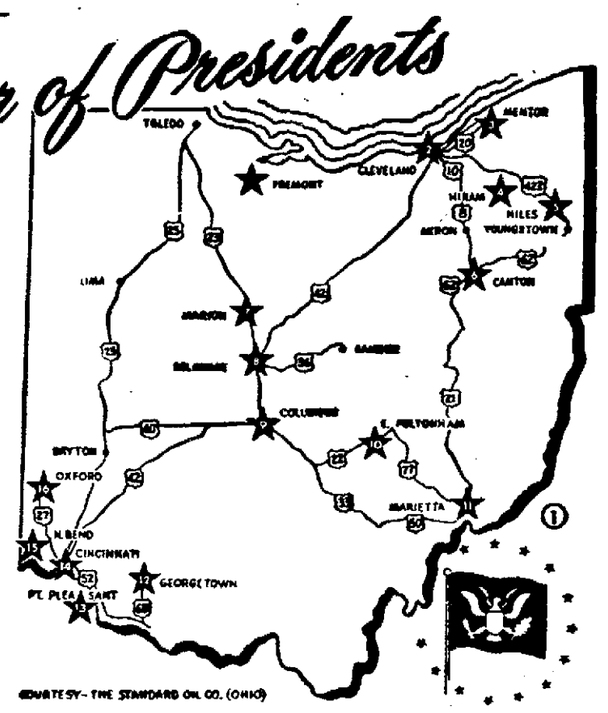
Let's Explore Ohio

Mother of Presidents



COURTESY—THE STANDARD OIL CO. (OHIO)

Historic Ohio is often referred to as "The Mother of Presidents" since no less than eight presidents of the United States were born in or elected from Ohio.

In addition, three vice presidents were born in Ohio.

As a result, there is scarcely a part of the state which does not have an historic shrine, a birthplace museum or a memorial honoring those Ohioans who have reached the highest position in the nation.

WILLIAM HENRY HARRISON, first such Ohioan, was the 9th President of the United States. Born in 1773 in Virginia, he early made his home in Ohio at North Bend just west of Cincinnati. Here he is buried in a memorial tomb that overlooks the Ohio river. (15).

ULYSSES S. GRANT was the second Ohio president and the 18th man to hold the office. The house in which he was born still stands at Pt. Pleasant on Route 52, southeast of Cincinnati. So, too, does his home at Georgetown in Brown county. (12 and 13).

RUTHERFORD B. HAYES, the 19th President of the United States was born at Delaware in 1822. A tablet has been erected on the site. His home at Fremont, Ohio, is in possession of his heirs and he is buried there on the grounds in Speigel Grove. A memorial museum is located near the homestead. (1 and 8).

JAMES A. GARFIELD, 20th President of the United States, war born in Orange township, Cuyahoga county. His old residence at Mentor, on Route 20, east of Cleveland, is still used by his heirs and is open to the public. Garfield is buried in Lakeview cemetery in Cleveland. (1 and 3).

BENJAMIN HARRISON, grandson of William Henry Harrison and 23rd President, was born in North Bend, on the Ohio river west of Cincinnati. (15 and 16).

WILLIAM McKINLEY, 25th President of the United States, was born at Niles Ohio. He is buried in one of the finest memorial tombs in the country at Canton, Ohio, and another memorial has been erected at Niles (5 and 6).

WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT, 27th President, was born in Mount Auburn, Cincinnati, Ohio. A Taft museum is maintained at the former residence of his brother, Charles B. Taft. (14).

WARREN G. HARDING, 29th President, was born in Blooming Grove in Morrow county. His residence at Marion, Ohio, is used as a memorial museum and he is entombed in a beautiful memorial on the outskirts of Marion. (7).

The three Ohio vice presidents are Thomas A. Hendricks, born at East Fultonham in Muskingum county, where the house still stands; Charles W. Fairbanks, born in Union county, and Charles G. Dawes, born in Marietta, Ohio. His birthplace still stands in this oldest Ohio city. (10 and 11).

(Another story in this series on Ohio presidents will appear in an early issue. Watch for it.)

Walter White Says—

Decency Lightens 'Spotty' Record of U. S. Fascists

With almost total indifference to the effect of their acts on our national reputation abroad and at home, an increasingly spotty record is being made by our native fascists, lightened only occasionally by decency.

The other day there came into my office a quiet man from a small town in Florida. He had operated a small grocery store for years, the profits from which he had devoted to education of his children. Along with other Negroes, he had registered to vote next November to help choose a leader for the next four years of the world's greatest democracy.

A few nights previously his store had been bombed and he and his family had been forced to flee under cover of darkness to escape mob violence. He came to see me at my office on the same day that the United States executed in Germany seven Nazi leaders who had persecuted their fellow Germans in obedience to Hitler's racist theories.

WHITE

Last week two eminently intelligent and respectable white Southern women were awakened by flash lights in the hands of members of the Ku Klux Klan as they slept in their tent in a Girl Scout camp in Alabama. They were there to train young colored women as Girl Scout leaders.

There was no question of the usual red herring of "purity of Southern white womanhood" nor of "social equality" because there were no men, Negro or white, within miles of the camp. But sex and social equality were not for the Kluxers to find justification for their act. Brutally they manhandled the two Southern white women and ordered them out of the camp.

For some years a young Negro scientist has commuted daily the 55 miles from New York City's Harlem to Wall township, six miles below Asbury Park, to work for his government in the army signal corps civilian laboratories. To eliminate the considerable physical strain and execessive expenditure of time and money, he sought to buy a home where he and his wife and their eight months old son could live.

Eventually, he found a modest home whose owner planned to move to New York City and was, therefore, willing to sell. As delighted with his good fortune as would be any normal human being, Leroy Hutson and his wife moved into their new home—to be greeted with a burning cross.

It would be easy to become pessimistic at the repetition of such episodes south and north, were it not for other items like the election of a young Negro war veteran and attorney in Richmond, Va., to the eight-man city council of that capital of the late Confederacy. It is true that Oliver W. Hill was elected predominantly by Negro voters.

But the margin of his victory over his nearest opponent was supplied by white Southerners who thereby gave a more decent and American answer to the question of civil and human rights than that of their senior senator, Harry Byrd, who recently implied in a radio address that the south would resort, if necessary, to mob violence to prevent enactment of President Truman's civil rights program.

It is still too early to appraise accurately the effect of the billingsgate which professional Southerners are pouring out on the nation and particularly upon the South to prevent any concrete action against Ku Kluxery. But recently Mrs. George Jester, mother of one of the leaders of Southern "revolt"—Governor Beauford H. Jester of Texas—joined in the unanimous endorsement by the annual convention of white church women of Texas of the Report of the President's Committee on Civil Rights.

The church women not only endorsed that program in toto but proposed the establishment immediately of implementing machinery in Texas to wipe out disfranchisement, educational and job inequality and the terrible crime of lynching.

We need to look at the whole picture to understand the tremendous ferment now going on which erupts in bubbles of Ku Kluxery and also in eruptions of courage and human decency.

Attend Ohio GAR Meeting

Three representatives of the Mansfield GAR auxiliary will leave today to attend the 82nd annual Ohio encampment in Columbus. The encampment will be held at the Deshler-Wallick hotel through Thursday.

Those attending are Mrs. Frank M. Brannon, 278 West Fifth street; Mrs. A. J. McHugh, 74 Hedges street, and Mrs. Alvin Miller, 423 Henry street.

Mrs. Brannon, past department president, will serve as guide to the department of Ohio allied orders. Mrs. Miller has been appointed to serve as a department guide. Mrs. McHugh is a past department secretary.

GAR men will be honorary guests and speakers at the encampment. John Grate of Atwater, GAR commander for the last two years, is expected to attend. He will be 103 years old on Aug. 1.

On Tuesday afternoon the department of Ohio auxiliary will present its annual gift to a representative of the Chillicothe hospital.

Sheriff Probes Robbery Report

Mrs. Ida Meyer, Bellville, told sheriff's deputies yesterday that she was robbed shortly after midnight Friday in her home.

She said two men were waiting in the bedroom when she came home. They grabbed her and took her purse which contained a large sum of money, she said. The exact amount was not reported to deputies.

Mrs. Meyers told officers that the robbers made their escape through the back door.

4-H Club Boys See Rope Demonstration

The Blue Star 4-H club decided to collect sales tax stamps for club activities at its last meeting. During the meeting, held at the home of Barbara and Eugene Funston, the boys gave a rope demonstration.

Eugene Funston showed the group a cutting board which he made for the wood working project. The refreshments prepared and served by Barbara Funston were part of her cooking project.

The next meeting will be a wiener roast at the home of Ted, Jim, and Elaine Baumberger on June 22.

Bar Owner Jailed

CLEVELAND — (AP) — John Hilgert Jr., 36, of Cuyahoga Falls, O., Friday was sentenced by Federal Judge Paul Jones to a year and a day for filing an income tax return of $9,000 for his 1944-45 income instead of his actual earnings of $50,000. Hilgert operated a bar.

Police Make 21 Arrests

Mansfield police had a busy time during the 24-hour period ended at 8 a. m. yesterday, arristing 21 persons for various minor law violations.

Seven of the violators were in court Saturday, where they were fined a total of $60.

Fined $10 and costs for speeding were David Twitchell, Evanston, Ill.; William E. Wise, Perrysville; and Tunis V. North jr., 347 Second avenue.

Ten dollar fines were assessed against Paul Hoffman, Seventh avenue, for operating an unsafe motor vehicle, and Eugene H. Wilborn, 325 North Main street, for unsafe operation of a motor vehicle. Wilborn's license was suspended for 60 days.

Elizabeth C. Lambroff, 924 Berger avenue, was fined $5 and costs for failure to have an operator's license and William Brinkman, New Washington, paid a similar fine for having insufficient brakes.

George Cross, Fairgrounds, was given a 10-day jail sentence, suspended providing he pay damages for breaking a window at the Ritz theater.

Shows Movies Of North Woods

A color movie of the Canadian north woods will be shown at the Mansfield YMCA Monday at 8:30 p.m., Maurice W. Taylor, general 'Y' secretary, announced today.

"The movie will picture the life in the great outdoors which will be experienced by the fathers and sons who will leave on the 'Y' sponsored Canadian canoe trip to Lake Temagami Aug. 20 through Sept. 2," Taylor said.

"Reservations for the trip are still open," he said, "and after the movie showing Monday night we expect to have a few more father and son combinations ready to leave for the two-week trip up the Canadian canoe trails."

IN MEMORY of my dear husband, John D. Burger, who passed away one year ago, June 12th, 1947.
It's lonesome here without you
I miss you more each day.
Somehow life doesn't seem the same
Since you were called away.
Your smiling face, your heart of gold
One of the best this world could hold.
My heart still aches with sadness
My eyes shed many a tear.
God alone knows how I miss you
As this ends the first sad year.
You were always so thoughtful loving and kind
What a beautiful memory you left behind.
Peacefully sleeping free from pain

JUNE IS BUSTIN' OUT ALL OVER . .
Yep, June is bustin' out all over and a lot of nice looking cars are being made the victims of some ornery driving. We don't like to lecture but we sometimes wonder why ALL drivers can't be as polite at the wheel as they are on foot?

Our business is still selling automobiles, which temporarily, are in short supply. When we deliver one of our nice shiny Chryslers or Plymouths we figure it's a rolling advertisement for us; other folks see it and they'll want one just like it.

The other side of the picture is the sad fact that a lot of drivers dawdle at a snails pace on an express lane while other characters show their bad manners by rushing hell bent for nowhere, weaving in and out, at an eighty mile clip. Maybe we shouldn't kick about cars getting banged up and dented because we have a first class body and paint shop where a lot of our lads devote full time to putting cars back in shape like new, but, we still don't like to see carelessness running rampant . . . We'd rather PREVENT an accident than PRESENT a repair bill.

Let June bust out all over, enjoying motoring, but please, don't get the car smashed up. Never argue the right of way with your fenders.

If your car needs a new spark plug, a grease job or a complete overhaul, our expert service men are right here on Walnut at Second street handy to any section of greater Mansfield.

• Build an outdoor fireplace on your property for economical recreation during the emergency —recreation for the family and entertainment for friends. What other form of fun is so economical? What other place is so convenient, so homey, so satisfying?

Your outdoor fireplace, built by yourself or a neighborhood craftsman, is at its best (free-burning and smokeless) when built according to Donley Plans, around Donley Units. These plans and equipment are fully described and illustrated in the book "Successful Outdoor Fireplaces" illustrated below. This book gives many suggestions, lots of pictures showing what other people have done, and construction details.

Write for your copy of this book, enclosing 10¢ in coin or stamps. You'll find that fireplace entertaining is economical—that it is fun to play in your own back yard.

A 64-page "Book of Successful Fireplaces. How To Build Them" gives information and construction details about both indoor and outdoor fireplaces. Over 200 illustrations, what to do, what not to do. Send 25¢ in coin or stamps for this larger, more inclusive book.

One Year Old, Taft-Hartley Act Still Center of Controversy

Legal Fights Just Starting To Hit Court

'Secondary Boycotts' Key Issue to Unions

By MAX HALL
(AP Labor Reporter)

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The first year of the Taft-Hartley act vibrated with activity, but the job of applying this enormously complex law has barely begun.

Legal battles only now are starting to reach the Supreme Court.

The National Labor Relations board (NLRB) has not yet ruled on a single "unfair labor practice" case arising under the new law.

It was a year ago next Wednesday, June 23, that Congress overrode President Truman's veto and made Taft-Hartley the law of the land.

Hitting the highest spots, here is the score to date:

The courts have issued about a dozen injunctions. Two were against John L. Lewis, one against both union and employer in an atomic energy laboratory, one against the International Typographical Union, one against General Motors.

Most of the injunctions were for the purpose of blocking "secondary boycotts"—that is, of preventing a union from fighting a company by forcing other companies to stop dealing with it.

INJUNCTIONS GRANTED

Mr. Truman has used the "national emergency" weapon five times, appointing inquiry boards and in some instances getting 80-day injunctions when strikes occurred or were threatened in these industries: atomic, coal, meat, telephone, maritime.

Only one provision of the law has been ruled unconstitutional by any court. This was the ban on union political spending. A federal district judge made the ruling. He dismissed charges against the CIO and its president, Philip Murray.

There have been two criminal indictments under Taft-Hartley (but no convictions). Both indictments were under the political spending provision. One was the CIO case. The other was against the AFL Painters Union in Harfford, Conn.

About 85,000 labor leaders have filed non-communist oaths, required under the act if a union wishes to avail itself of NLRB services. All the officers of 159 national unions and 9,035 local unions have filed affidavits.

The main holdouts are Lewis's United Mine Workers, the CIO Steel Workers and a dozen "left wing" CIO unions. Lewis failed to carry the AFL along with him, in a fight against the affidavit requirement and he quit the AFL.

The affidavit issue caused the first big swirling storm under the law, and it was the first important provision to be fully interpreted by rulings of the NLRB

11,000 PLANT ELECTIONS

The labor board has conducted about 11,000 plant elections under Taft-Hartley. About 9,000 of those were elections in which workers voted on whether they wanted the "union shop." They voted "no" in only 158.

Taft-Hartley made unions subject to "unfair labor practice" charges for the first time. But unions still are filing far more charges against employers than employers are filing against unions.

In 2,704 cases, 2,116 involve charges against employers.

(The figures on plant elections and "unfair" charges are for the period starting last Aug. 22, when the Taft-Hartley provisions which are administered by the NLRB went into effect, and ending May 1. No figures are yet available for May and June).

The favorite charge against unions has been that of secondary boycotts. The favorite charge against employers has been that of firing workers for union activities.

Some of these "unfair" cases arising under Taft-Hartley have been ruled upon by NLRB trial examiners, but none by the five-man board itself.

The board, however, has been extremely busy with cases involving the choice of collective bargaining representatives It has also issued rulings in many "unfair" cases which started under the old Wagner act.

DENHAM OVERLOADED, TOO

The investigating and prosecuting arm of the NLRB, now operating as an independent agency under General Counsel Robert N. Denham, has been overloaded with duties, too

The backlog of NLRB cases pending at various levels climbed to an all-time record of 14,467 on May 1.

After one year, Taft-Hartley is still a subject streaked with acrid clouds of emotion.

Generally, the clashing opinions heard in 1947 have not changed. Labor leaders still demand complete repeal. Most industrialists either want to leave the law alone or strengthen its curbs on labor leaders.

The law will remain as it is, at least until 1949.

Many grave questions are still to be answered by the labor board and the courts For example, how far does the law go in the control of picketing? Is a union always responsible for the actions of pickets? When is a peaceful picket line illegal?

The next 12 months may bring the answers.

China Cash Escaping to Black Mart

SHANGHAI —(AP)— Torrents of wealth are pouring out of China in what economists here describe as a "wholesale flight of capital."

A Shanghai trader said bitterly: "The rats are leaving the ship"

In any event the most rigid controls over money movemen. fail to stop the exodus. Anybody with wealth tries to get at least a part of it into some safe place.

This flight of capital has been in progress for a long time, but recent developments—including the communist successes in the north—have speeded it up.

Every day by plane, ship, donkey cart and back pack great amounts of money move south to Shanghai Since the movement is entirely illegal no one knows for sure just how great it is. If the money reaches Shanghai in the form of Chinese dollars, it goes into the black market in an effort to convert itself into United States dollars or gold—anything sound. This converted wealth then either moves abroad by means of checks or drafts, also purchased on the black market, which are mailed out.

All this has helped drive the black market value of the American dollar to well over 1,000,000 to 1.

The general opinion is that most of this wealth finally reaches Hong Kong, British crown colony on China's south coast. Some of it enters the flourishing Hong Kong trade and some simply goes into the banks. Whatever the end, the owner heaves a sigh of relief when his funds reach their destination. His wealth is in sound money and, by China standards, out of harm's way.

For example, scores of industrial plants in the lower Yangtze valley have been moved to Hong Kong. It has been estimated that industrial capital fleeing China for Hong Kong, either in the form of money or factories since the end of the Japanese war will exceed 100 million Hong Kong dollars ($25,000,000).

Six Chinese cotton mills now are being built in Hong Kong. Several Chinese silk mills, soap making, enamel and thermos bottle plants already have moved there.

All this represents a flight of capital not from the communist-threatened north, but from the south, which is supposed to be a government stronghold.

4 to Attend DAV Session

Four Mansfielders are expected to attend the Spring conference of the Fourth and Fifth districts of the Ohio Disabled Veterans Association today at Findlay.

The four Mansfield DAV officers are Robert O'Leary and Lawrence Geary, executive officers; Harry Honse, service officer, and Harry Mapes, acting commander.

The four Mansfielders will join with representatives of the Ohio DAV chapters in a review and discussion of the work of their organization in assisting disabled veterans in filing and obtaining their claims.

Sessions will start at 10:30 a.m., today with a service school and continue through the afternoon. An auxiliary conference also will be held today from 10:30 a.m. to 12:15 p.m.

Crop Concern Sends Corn Up

CHICAGO —(AP)— There was enough concern over the prospect of a mostly clear week-end in the mid-west to cause an advance in corn Saturday. The yellow cereal's strength was reflected in better prices for wheat and oats on the Board of Trade.

Grains had a firm tone throughout nearly the entire session, although dealings were not active. The only hesitancy was right at the start, when wheat dipped fractionally. But the bread cereal recovered quickly when it became apparent corn and oats were in demand.

From that time to the close, prices held above Friday's finish. At the end wheat was ⅜-⅞ higher, July $2.31⅝-¾, corn was 1¼-2⅛ higher, July $2 21⅞-$2 22, oats were ⅝-⅛ higher, July 94⅛-¼, and soybeans were unchanged to a cent higher, July $4 19.

GAR Down To Last Two

COLUMBUS —(AP)—The annual Ohio GAR encampment opens today in Columbus, but only two veterans of the War between the States are expected to answer roll call.

John H. Grate of Atwater, 103-year-old state GAR commander for the last two years, and John R. Bennett, also 103, of Waynesfield, adjutant and quartermaster, are the last of the Buckeye civil war veterans.

The two old campaigners will be entertained tonight at a banquet in the Deshler-Wallick hotel. Annual memorial services will follow.

STORM HITS AKRON

AKRON —(AP)— Two inches of rain, nearly half of which fell within 15 minutes, struck Akron Friday night. A dozen homes were hit by lightning and electric power was disrupted in the residential West Hill area.

Open Door To 205,000 Refugees

Congress Approves Compromise Bill

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Congress finished work today on a bill to admit 205,000 homeless Europeans to the United States in the next two years.

The Senate passed the compromise measure by a voice vote, sending it to the White House The House approved the measure yesterday

A heated dispute over its terms flared during the Senate debate, which ran on for more than two hours.

Senators Ferguson (R-Mich) and Kilgore (D-W Va) denounced the bill as "discriminative" and "unworkable" Senator Revercomb (R-W. Va), floor manager for the legislation, upheld it, as did Senators Wiley (R-Wis) Donnell (R-Mo) and others

Specifically, opponents of the measure contended it was unfair to Jews and Catholics Senator McGrath (D-R I) asserted it would write into law principles of "narrowness, intolerance and bigotry"

Revercomb replied flatly that "there is no discrimination against anyone because of religion or faith, and I say so emphatically"

It would authorize the admission of 200,000 displaced persons who come within stated eligibility rules, 3,000 orphans under 16 years of age, and 2,000 persons who fled from Czechoslovakia after the communists seized control of that country

CITIZENSHIP OPEN

In addition, the measure would allow 15,000 aliens now in the United States to become permanent residents if the affirmative approval of Congress is obtained in each case

The eligibility rules for DP's require that they must have entered the occupation zones of Germany or Austria before Dec 22 1945 that at least 40 per cent of the 200 000 must come from areas annexed by a foreign power (this means eastern Poland Latvia Lithuania and Estonia) and that at least 30 per cent of the immigrants must be trained farmers prepared to work on American farms

The 1945 deadline brought on the most argument. Opponents of that clause told the Senate that thousands of Jewish wanderers, driven from their homes by fear or threats of persecution, entered the DP camps after Dec. 22, 1945

The requirement that at least 40 per cent of the immigrants come from the Baltic area was cited as discriminatory to Catholics Few Catholics normally lived in that area

Senator Cooper (R-Ky) estimated that the bill would permit the entry of 16 000 Jews He called the bill the first step by a major power toward settling the DP problem

Asks Prompt Reporting

Edward P Blonston manager of the Mansfield office of the Social Security Administration yesterday urged wage earners to contact his office as soon as they reach the age of 65, whether they expect to continue working or not

He pointed out that some individuals have lost their old-age retirement benefits because of failure to notify his office at 405 Richland Trust building.

"Many persons are of the erroneous opinion that the possession of property and a bank account prohibits the payment of old-age retirement insurance When an individual files claim for old-age insurance we don't ask him if he is worth a dollar or a million Blonston said

He cited the recent case of a millionaire and his wife who are both receiving old-age insurance

If an individual defers making application he loses his monthly insurance while he delays

GOP Draft Kept Secret

Congress Fights Disturb Writers

By FRANCIS M LEMAY

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— A secret preliminary draft of the 1948 GOP platform was drawn Saturday, embodying a foreign affairs plank reported to cold-shoulder isolationists and a call for continues U S world leadership to resist communism and keep the peace

The platform writers, working behind closed doors, decided not to disclose details until the final draft is drawn

There were some signs of fear of a party cleavage developing from the disagreements among Republicans in Congress over important international and domestic issues. This could bring a platform fight on the convention floor.

The party policy writers here sought a middleground on such things as foreign aid housing, aid to education the public-private power issue and a farm program

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, platform chairman, hinted there will be revisions of the preliminary platform draft to fit some of the late actions of Congress

In its final form he said 'I think the platform will be a tent big enough so everybody can get under it I don't think any candidate will object to it'

But he did not discount the possibility of a convention battle on platform language

The preliminary draft contained about 3,500 words. Lodge said the drafting committee will "edit" this to around 1,500 words, perhaps the shortest GOP platform in history The Democrats in 1944 drew up a platform of just a few more than 1,300 words

The full 104-member platform committee will meet Monday to approve the final draft The document will go before the Republican convention Tuesday or Wednesday for ratification

Lutheran Church Merger Favored

BIRMINGHAM Pa —(AP)— The eastern district of the American Lutheran church favors an immediate union of all bodies now federated in the American Lutheran conference

At a meeting here on Friday the district urged the parent body of the church also to continue efforts to join with the United Lutheran church

Susie Q. Smith . . .

"Oh, the party WAS over at twelve, Popsie . . . the gang is just helping me clean up!"

Congregationalists Delay Vote on Evangelical Merger

OBERLIN — (AP) — After three hours of lively debate but no action, the general council of the Congregational Christian churches Saturday postponed until Monday further discussion of a merger with the Evangelical and Reformed church

Both majority and minority reports of the commission on interchurch relations and christian unity recommended 'no definitive action" be taken on the union at the current eight-day meeting of more than 2 000 lay and clerical delegates

The church's executive committee, through Fred S Buschmeyer of Washington, likewise moved that no final action be taken at this biennial council meeting.

But neither suggestion is binding upon the council which tabled Buschmeyer's motion and displayed considerable sentiment for arguing the merger question to a decision here

Federal Judge Florence E Allen of Cincinnati reported that a Congregationalist plebiscite conducted during the past nine months in 3,954 churches with 835,731 of the denomination's estimated 1,250,000 members had these results

For the merger—2,576 churches, or 65 5 per cent, 144,221 members or 63 3 per cent, 32 conferences (state-level), or 94 1 per cent, 152 associations (county-level) or 80 per cent

Against the merger — 1,352 churches, 83,503 members, two conferences, 38 associations.

Extension of Truce Seen

RHODES —(AP)— The possibility rose Saturday that Count Folke Bernadotte may ask that the four-week truce in Palestine be extended Such a request would have to come through the UN security council

The question of an extension will come up it is believed if the UN mediator fails before the end of the truce to find a chink in the determined stands of both Arabs and Jews through which the basis of an understanding might be driven

'Certainly these people should not be allowed to go on killing each other said one of Bernadotte's aides

The Swedish count arrived at his headquarters here Friday to begin a task at which 20 other missions have failed since the first World War His staff says he is moving cautiously step by step with permanent peace as the goal

M'Gregor's Bill Awaits Signature

A bill introduced by Congressman J Harry McGregor providing for the transfer of temporary government housing on college campuses from government control to the educational institutions' jurisdiction is on President Truman's desk, awaiting signature

It is contended by McGregor that these housing units would be of no value if they were torn down, but will be of great value to the universities and colleges and will do much in providing low cost rentals to veterans attending school under the GI bill of rights

The legislation, which was passed Friday, provides that ex-GI's shall be given priority in renting these units

Board to Meet

The executive board of the Ohio State Guard association will meet Tuesday at 7 30 p m at 43 North Mulberry street Plans will be discussed for the next regular meeting and the group's picnic in July Members attending the Tuesday night meeting are asked to use the rear entrance to the building

Combined Fund Drive Favored

Donors Voice Views In Mail Survey

ent system of multiple drives. Only two major drives a year reach workers in the majority of industrial plants.

Many of the questionnaires carried comments, suggestions and the names of agencies that contributors would like to see included in a major drive. Some preferred all approved agencies to be included in a single annual drive, some believed that there should be just two major drives, the American Red Cross and the Community Chest which would include all health and welfare agencies meeting national standards Several persons suggested that there be three major drives a year—the Red Cross and the Community Chest and all national health agencies operating a local unit combine for a single health drive in mid-winter

'OPEN DOOR' POLICY

W E Slabaugh jr, president of the Mansfield Community Chest, said that the Chest has always had an "open door" policy for local agencies, which operate within Chest standards, but that it has no control over any fund raising organizations except the 11 within the Chest federation

He said, however, that the Chest was willing to attempt whatever the majority of Mansfield contributors wanted accomplished in the way of federated fund raising Most of the national health agencies operating in this city are obligated to their national offices to follow certain set policies and are not always free to make a local decision, he pointed out, and therefore, cannot join any local fund raising campaign

Slabaugh said he considered the results of the survey a vote of confidence in the Community Chest plan of federation. In other cities where similar surveys have been conducted either by a Chamber of Commerce or by other civic organizations, the vote for a more complete federation has been about 50-50, as contrasted to the 77-23 favorable percentage in Mansfield.

Soulen stated that the results of the survey would be turned over to the Community Chest for detailed analysis and investigation perhaps by a committee of Chest contributors

County Needs 9 Teachers

Boyd Robinson, county superintendent of schools, said yesterday that nine teaching positions remain to be filled in Richland county

Included are two elementary and one high school positions in the Union schools, a high school position at Plymouth, one high school and one elementary position each in Bellville, an elementary teaching job in Mifflin township and two high school openings in Shiloh

Robinson said the housing problem here caused some prospective teachers to hesitate in accepting the jobs He said more vacancies may appear as July 10 approaches That date is the deadline for submitting resignations

Zone Lines Under Guard In Germany

Money Smuggling Channels Blocked

BERLIN — (AP)—Sharply tightened controls backed by armed patrols were imposed last night on both sides of the "new money" borders between the Russian zone and western Germany and on the road to Berlin.

The Soviet-controlled Berlin radio reported the capture of eight persons whom it claimed "were seeking to smuggle huge quantities of reichmarks into the Russian zone from the west."

The Russians stopped scores of allied travelers and thousands of Germans who sought to enter their occupation zone and Berlin from the west.

They said they feared these persons might smuggle in a flood of reichsmarks which will be declared surplus when the currency reform takes effect today in the U. S., British and French zones.

Railroad and barge freight was subjected to rigid inspection and the exit of Germans from the Soviet zone was sharply restricted.

American authorities last night tightened controls on the U.S. side of the border in preparation for the issuance of western Germany's new deutsche marks. The currency revision announced Friday by the three western powers abandons the old Hitler reichmark.

Border points reported scores of additional U.S. constabulary troopers were patrolling the frontier to keep out illegal crossers from the Russian zone.

German police received orders to detain all persons from the east, even if they held valid passes. They were taken to control point., searched for reichmarks and allowed to retain only 60 marks which can be legally exchanged tomorrow.

Some Germans who entered illegally from the Russian zone and were captured, told German reporters the Soviet frontier controls were "the strongest since 1945 when Russian soldiers shot anyone moving in a border area."

One group which crossed illegally into Bavaria claimed it had been fired upon when leaving the Russian zone.

At Helmstedt, the British border control point on the motor highway to Berlin, a squad of British armored and scout cars gave a grim aspect to the border watch for a while yesterday afternoon.

The travel scene there was one of confusion as 800 Germans turned back on the Berlin road milled about the highway.

Further south, on the Soviet-American zone border, German travelers said the Russians had posted tanks and armored cars and had some of their patrols in trenches.

FCC Probe Given OK

mittee, denied that it would be an invasion of his group. According to Associated Press, he told the House:

"This resolution does a thing we have been seeking to do, and that is a thorough investigation of the FCC."

Rep. E. E. Cox (D.-Ga.), chairman of a special house group which investigated the FCC five years ago, said the FCC granted five licenses in two weeks "to a man who will testify he is a former member of the Communist party." He did not identify the individual.

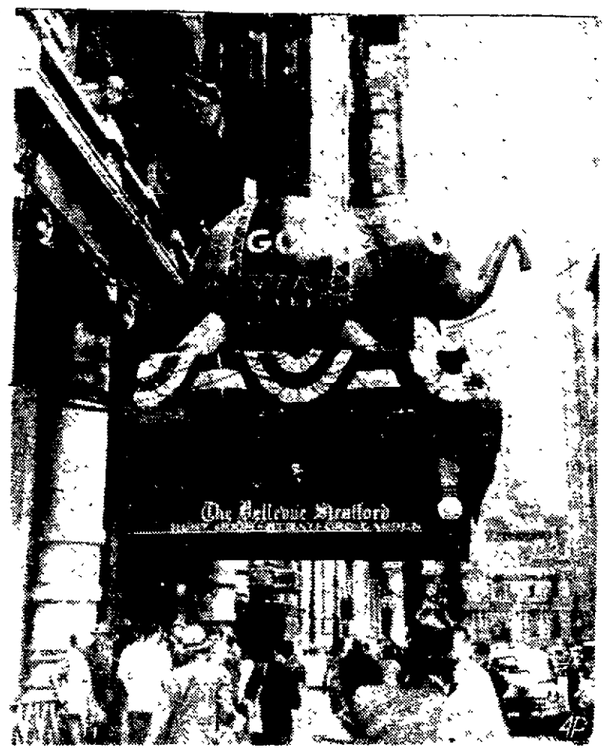
WILL START AT ONCE

Cox, who resigned his chairmanship in the midst of the old investigation, said he had been driven out by a "smear" campaign.

Both Harness and Cox were slated for appointment as members of the new five-man investigating committee, Associated Press said. Harness told newsmen he will start the inquiry immediately.

Harness told the House that he had no specific "charges" against the FCC or any of its seven-man board, but he said the resolution "speaks for itself."

Among other things, the resolution calls for an investigation to dotermine whether the FCC has licensed radio stations owned or controlled by communists or members of communist-front organizations.



TRIAL BALLOON AT CONVENTION CITY—With delegates and visitors to the Republican National convention pouring into Philadelphia, this Balloon GOP elephant appeared outside the Bellevue Stratford hotel, headquarters for the Republicans. Yesterday the balloon unexpectedly sprang a leak, but repairs were made quickly, to the accompaniment of heckling from jeering Democrats. (AP Wirephoto).

Leading GOP Candidates Open Ballyhoo In Convention City

PHILADELPHIA — (AP) — Pre-convention ballyhoo on behalf of leading candidates for the Republican nomination took definite form yesterday in advance of the arrival of such key figures as Gov. Dewey, Sen. Taft and Sen. Vandenberg.

When Dewey drives in from New York today, he will head for his headquarters at the Bellevue Stratford hotel.

Over the marquee is an impartial 22-foot rubber elephant. Yesterday the beast was on its knees while a repairman desperately manned the pump.

NEONS FOR STASSEN

Once inside the hotel, Dewey will be staring straight into a white neon sign advertising "Stassen Hdqs." The Minnesotan has the walls loaded with banners, pictures and flags, and a horde of people passing out buttons, doughnuts and coffee.

In Dewey's own headquarters, a ballroom one flight up, the picture is much the same. At one end are tremendous photographs of the capitol buildings in Washington and Albany, with an equally big color picture of Dewey between.

Piled on a table are elaborately wrapped packages. Once the headquarters opens officially tonight, every 200th visitor gets a prize and every 1,000th gets a grand prize.

Such things as stockings, size 10½; 2 slips, medium; and a fitted suitcase.

UNDECORATED SUITES

So far, Vandenberg and Warren headquarters have only undecorated suites in the Warwick hotel, Vandenberg on the 12th floor, Warren four decks higher.

Taft has no competition from rival candidates at the Benjamin Franklin hotel a few blocks away. Banners stream from every column in the lobby. Huge signs outside say "Win with Taft."

But the seventh floor headquarters proper are lacking convention trappings — except for helpers milling around offering literature and buttons.

The national committee backing Gen. Douglas MacArthur has headquarters at the Adelphia hotel. But on the door of the suite advertised for it, a placard says only:

"Illinois Delegation.
"Warren Wright"
"National Coordinator."

first roll call. But he says he will be nominated by the ninth.

TWO BIG UNKNOWNS

Vandenberg and Pennsylvania are the big unknown elements.

Vandenberg's position all along has been that he is not a candidate, but that no man could turn down a genuine draft. His headquarters has said he will bring a statement of his position with him today.

Pennsylvania fits in this way:

The state's 73 votes are pledged to Senator Edward Martin, a favorite son. The question is, how long they will stick to Martin and in whose direction they will swing eventually? Those are points that will come up at tonight's caucus.

Gov. James H. Duff, chairman of the delegation, has been reported privately to be leaning toward Vandenberg. But National Committeeman G. Mason Owlett is regarded as a Dewey man.

BONUS FOR VOTES

Stassen announced that he will be nominated for the presidency by Rep. Walter H. Judd of Minnesota.

The convention's rules committee decided to give a bigger bonus in convention delegates in 1952 to states that turn in Republican victories this year. These states will get more convention delegates.

National Committeeman Rex Eaton of Colorado said that would mean southern states would have a smaller voice in picking the 1952 nominee.

Mansfielder Will Serve as Delegate

CLEVELAND —(AP)— The new Progressive party of Ohio announced today a partial list of delegates to the national convention in Philadelphia.

Those selected include William Kozma, Reed street, Mansfield.

City Council Asked to Act On Play Pay

Special Meeting Called for Monday

City council will meet in special session Monday at 7:30 p. m., to provide funds for payment of city recreation department summer playground workers.

Several of the workers are already employed and others will be on the job within the next two weeks. They can't be paid, however, until council appropriates the money, nor can they be paid for the period that they work prior to the passage of the measure.

A recent state examiner's report pointed out that retroactive salary payments, no matter how just, are illegal. Council can always circumvent that section of the law if the situation calls for it, by passing a measure labeled a "moral obligation of the city" and as such it can be paid.

Among the personnel employed by the city recreation department this summer are playground play leaders, a supervisor of baseball, a supervisor of men's and boys' athletics, a supervisor of safety town, a supervisor of arts and crafts and girls' athletics and baseball umpires.

Long Illness Ends In Death

Postpone Shelby Pond Dedication

SHELBY — The scheduled dedication today of the city reservoir for public fishing was postponed last night until early August.

Also postponed was the third annual fishing contest sponsored by Fred Laubie, Shelby sporting goods store operator.

The postponement was due to the inability of H. A. Rider, commissioner of the Ohio division of conversation and natural resorces, to attend the dedication.

Progressive Party Forms

Backers to Hear Wallace Tonight

CLEVELAND —(AP)— The Progressive party of Ohio, the first new party in the state since the Bull Moose days of Teddy Roosevelt, was founded Saturday by supporters of Henry A. Wallace.

That was the name given the political party—so far barred from the ballot by Secretary of State Edward J. Hummel—at the opening session of a two-day convention. Some 500 delegates attended.

Such a party is needed, their resolution read, because:

"Bi-partisanship has produced war-bent United States policy in foreign lands;

"Our Congress is now launching us into a militarization of foreign lands;

"The community of nations has been weakened—and not strengthened—by Republican as well as Democratic party leaders;

"Our Congress is now launching us into a militarization program of a magnitude uncalled for by the present world situation."

Supporters of the new party, now contesting Hummel's ruling in the Ohio Supreme court, will hear Wallace himself speak here tonight at the closing session of the convention.

By that time, said Administrative Director Nathan B. Zahm of the Ohio Wallace-for-President committee, the convention will have its platform completely written.

Senator Glen H. Taylor (D-IDA), who plans to run as vice-president under Wallace, also is expected to speak.

Flat 2 Year Terms Voted

WASHINGTON — (AP) —Brushing aside President Truman's recommendations, the Senate voted Saturday to keep the present atomic energy commissioners in office a flat two years more.

The voice vote was in favor of a bill extending their present terms of office to June 30, 1950. The measure now goes to the White House.

President Truman nominated David E. Lilienthal to a five-year term and the other four commissioners to terms ranging from one to four years. Instead of voting on their confirmation, the Senate acted to extend their terms two more years.

One effect of the bill, if it becomes law, would be to give the next President the power to make the full-term appointments.

Just before the vote, Senator Vandenberg (R.-Mich.) declared the extension plan is "the precise and prayerful answer" to those who want to keep the commission free of politics.

Senator McMahon (D.-Conn.) had asserted the measure was a politically inspired move to get rid of Lilienthal.

McMahon is the ranking Senate Democrat on the congressional atomic energy committee.

Vandenberg, also a member of the committee, said he is certain he cannot be accused of a political conspiracy against Lilienthal. He took a leading role in the prolonged and bitter Senate fight for confirmation of the commission chairman 18 months ago.

Sears, Roebuck Co-Founder Dies

CHICAGO —(AP)— Alvah Curtis Roebuck, 84, of Tujanga, Calif., one of the co-founders of Sears, Roebuck and company, died Friday night.

He was stricken while visiting his daughter, Mrs. Raymond H. Keeler in suburban Evanston.

It was from his partnership with Richard W. Sears in 1891 that the huge mail order business grew.

War Cost Lives Of 6,500 Jews

CAIRO — (AP) — An Egyptian newspaper said last night 6,500 Jews were killed in the Palestine war between May 15 when the British madate ended, and June 11 when the United Nations truce was declared.

The paper, Al Assas, said 6,000 Zionists were taken prisoner by the Arab armies during the same period. Al Assas is the organ of Prime Minister Mahmoud Fahmy Nokrashy Pasha's Saadist party.

Pledge of Allegiance to Flag

"I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

Planning To Strengthen Friendships

A NEW permanent organization is expected to result from the meeting in Dunkirk, N. Y., of representatives of various municipalities and relief agencies which have adopted war-broken European towns.

Two organizations are sponsoring this National Conference on Town Affiliation. One is The Dunkirk Society; the other is Operation Democracy, a clearing house in New York City which is operated to aid such projects. Both realize that their work will always remain merely a supplement to the official plan for aid to Europe, but they believe that the spontaneous release of feelings of fellowship between ordinary citizens here and abroad cannot fail to be of value in improving international relationships.

Duplication of effort has brought about cases of the favoring of one town by several in America, while others close by, equally needy, have been neglected. One organization, for the purpose of co-ordinating effort and simplifying method, would undoubtedly be a help.

By such direct methods between groups, understanding between nationalities may be brought about. Such understanding is the only foundation upon which a lasting peace can be built. Good will is a force, the strength of which is capable of working up through the ranks of the people to their leaders, who have power to make or break peace.

Russians Follow Hitler's Formula

RECENTLY the situation in Western Germany was discussed here. Now what about the part of the old Reich hidden behind the iron curtain? As one newspaperman put it: "If Herr Rip von Winkelmann had fallen asleep during one of Hitler's orations and awoke today in the Soviet zone, he could hardly tell the difference."

Goebbels used to shout, "Strength through unity." The communist press shouts, "Unity—our strength." Controlled newspapers and radio scream for a new, strong "fatherland."

As in 1942, the eastern Germans are being told that the United States is facing a depression that will bring the collapse of capitalism. Just as did Hitler, the Russians claim they want peace and the capitalist nations are warmongers.

There is one labor union, run by the communists, and the worker does its bidding—or else.

There is a youth organization similar to the Hitler Jugend

Eastern Germany today is, indeed, very little different from the Nazi reich except that the Kremlin instead of the Chancellory calls the tricks. The present aim of its politicians is to swallow Western Germany which is the reason for all the hullabaloo about the "fatherland."

No doubt the Germans enjoy the familiar propaganda, but there is a valid question as to whether they are deceived about its intent to aid the Russians rather than themselves.

Sees Need For Educated Politicians

THE United States Civil Service Commission lost a member when Arthur S. Fleming, appointed in 1939, was named president of his alma mater, Ohio Wesleyan University, at Delaware. From his long contact with the Washington scene, President Fleming brings the strong conviction that he must influence as many as possible of his best students to go into politics after their graduation.

He will teach a course in political science himself, drawing on his civil service experience, his work on the War Manpower Commission and his present appointment to the new Hoover Commission set up by Congress to study the efficiency of the executive branch of the government.

So convinced is President Fleming that an educated citizen has an obligation to public service, that he believes a college graduate should start wherever he can, by ringing doorbells if necessary, for a good candidate for the local council.

This is an important pedagogical idea. Too often politicians are drawn from the ranks of men of low ideals; office-holders are any men who want to run for office and can make themselves acceptable to such politicians. If America is to save its democratic way of life, it must see that politics attracts its best trained, best educated, best all-around qualified youth.

Artificial Limbs Being Improved

AN ARMLESS VETERAN in Los Angeles who has been acting as a tester of artificial limbs for the Veterans Administration became so proficient with his new arms that he has been granted a license to drive a truck.

Great advance is being made in such inventions. Artificial hands have moveable fingers and thumbs as well as flexible wrists and hooks with pressure devices. The wearer can button and unbutton his clothes, shave, hold a telephone or a cigaret, write. New artificial legs permit the wearer to put his weight on the attached leg when going down stairs. Suction sockets keep the limb in place without straps and give the owner a sense of almost having his own leg.

All such improved designs promise greater comfort and independence, not only for war wounded, but for the thousands of limbless civilians. As fast as new mechanisms are developed to practicality and reliability they will be distributed to veterans and later to handicapped non-veterans.

Ingenuity and science are doing their best to substitute a useable tool for Nature's own creation.

Estimating the Family Ironing

THE HOMEMAKER of a family of three irons each week the equivalent of a strip 250 feet long by three feet wide, according to the General Electric Consumers Institute.

The average housewife will think that this figure errs, if at all, on the conservative side. Probably she would prefer the alternate set of figures given out in this connection, whereby her week's ironing would amount to 108,833 square inches. It seems like millions to the average wife and mother.

A Grand Rapids, Mich., man is reported to have built his house so that a trout stream runs through his living room. One drawback is that his wife will be able to check on his stories of his catch.

The Wall Street Journal brings the comforting information that cranberries will be plentiful for next Thanksgiving—but nothing is said about the turkey prospects.

A Voice From the Country

Near East Events Reveal Weak Policies

By LOUIS BROMFIELD

NOTHING illustrates more clearly the growing muddle of our "foreign policy" than the series of events which have taken place recently in the Near East.

We are treated to the spectacle of the greatest and strongest nation on earth behaving as if it were, no more than a Balkan or a small South American nation, with the President of the United States dealing with a world situation of the greatest importance as if it were a Pendergast ward election in Kansas City.

At Haifa, a port belonging to a small precariously established half-barbaric state, fifty-two individuals, most of them American citizens, are removed by force from an American ship and placed in a concentration camp because the bureaucrats of this insignificant and troublesome nation do not approve of their ultimate destination in Palestine.

Our government makes a mild, almost cringing protest, and finally agrees to a compromise with the twentieth-rate irresponsible nation by which the fifty-two individuals are returned to the United States.

In Egypt, another insignificant and certainly corrupt half-barbaric small nation, American goods in great quantities are removed from British ships and held, with the chances, after much muddling and considering the quality and behavior of the Egyptian government, of their being confiscated.

Meanwhile a strong American fleet in the Mediterranean is ordered to keep out of the area, apparently to permit a few Egyptian Feluccas and second-hand gun boats to interrupt trade, free circulation of American citizens and generally to mess up conditions in a trigger-dangerous area.

Our government forces a partitioned Palestine on the United Nations, repudiates it within a few weeks, and then overnight recognizes the Palestine state.

What goes on? These actions in addition to many more too numerous to record, are as silly and irresponsible as any that can be found in all history.

The motive cannot be non-intervention for in exactly the same area in Greece and Turkey, we are spending hundreds of millions of dollars in military aid and are even supplying military personnel in the form of "instructors" while we maintain over that part of the Near East heavy "supervision" by a powerful fleet.

* * *

Tracing the Causes.

THE SERIES of irresponsible and uncoordinated acts is producing in the world a sore spot such as the Balkans once were, with horrible possibilities for future dissension leading to world war.

These actions, one and all, cannot be calculated to strengthen world peace and government or the principles of the United Nations, for they have served only to weaken and imperil all of these goals.

The actions listed do not represent any responsibility to keep peace and order in the world for they are achieving exactly the opposite goal.

When the British empire was a great force for peace it never behaved thus. It accepted its responsibilities as the most powerful nation on earth and acted upon them.

Since the empire has fallen apart it must be said that the Labor government, which directs British foreign policy, has been of little help, at least in the Near East.

The Labor government has behaved rather like an impotent and bitter old shrew, intriguing, uncooperative, and apparently bent upon creating confusion and disruption in areas where it can no longer impose its will.

Behind this muddled record, two or three clarifying factors have begun to emerge. (1) that President Truman and his absurd personal advisors are much more responsible for the confusion than the overstuffed, unorganized state department.

Many of the actions were made on quick, snap judgment decisions by Mr. Truman without ever informing Secretary Marshall, (a fact which points more and more toward the need of constitutional restrictions upon the power of a president over foreign policy and actions).

(2) that the Palestine situation has been dealt with a large part of the time solely on the basis of the Greater New York vote and upon the advice of Democratic machine bosses like Hague and Flynn.

(3) that the situation has been immensely complicated by the pressure of American oil interests which are whole-heartedly pro-Arab regardless of the effect upon the dignity of this nation or the peace of the world.

Mr. Truman, clearly a weak man given to snap judgments, apparently changes his policy from day to day, according to whether on a given day he is subject to the pressure of the oil interests or the ward-politicians. The total result has been confusion, weakness, evasion of world responsibility, and tragic absurdity.

And in the midst of it all, Mr. Truman sets out on a junket across country, gaily making bad jokes about the tour being non-political.

Few nations have ever been put in so humiliating a situation nor does history present any epoch in the record of any great nation that is sillier, more small-minded or irresponsible.

—By KEN WOODMAN

WELL, the fathers have their day today and the favorite sons have their's tomorrow. And most of us are perefectly satisfied to settle for the father role.

* * *

The main trouble with being a favorite son is that unless you are THE one, you spend most of your time figuring out the smartest way to give away your family of delegates to somebody else.

* * *

It's either that or see them go riding away on a dark horse . . . Ohio's favorite son is in a better position than most, however. Sen. Taft has more than one delegation and don't be too surprised if he keeps right on adding to the list after the balloting starts.

Dewey Accorded 'Post Position' In Race

By DREW PEARSON

(Editor's Note: Drew Pearson continues his columns on the Republican hopefuls with a diagnosis of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.)

* * *

PHILADELPHIA — Side lights on the Man who has the Post in the GOP Race for President: Eight years ago, when Thomas E. Dewey first aspired to be president, he was brilliant, bumptious, and 38 years old. Fortunately for us and him, the country was spared the ordeal of a Dewey administration. Again in 1944, Dewey, then 42 years old had improved, but still was cantankerous, conceited, not seasoned enough to be president . . . Those were the days when Dewey worried about his height, had a big book placed behind the rostrum for him to stand on at Oklahoma City, even coached photographers on how to take his picture.

Dewey Grows Up—Dewey got a letter from Henry Holt the other day: "Tom, get a lift. You're short and stand flat." Dewey wrote back: "Henry, they'll have to take me or leave me as I am." . . . Talking to Dewey, I was surprised to hear him joke about himself during the hectic 1944 campaign. "The mistakes I made in that race," Dewey said in effect, "helped make a man of me. You don't know what experience is until you have run for president." . . . Then Dewey paid a tribute to Roosevelt: "When I look back on Roosevelt's long years in office and realize how easily graft can creep in, I must pay tribute to his record of administration." . . . I couldn't help remember how Dewey, four years before, had been castigating FDR all over the lot . . . In four years, Tom Dewey has grown up.

Confession—In the past, I confess, I never liked Dewey. Now I do . . . Mrs. Kenneth Simpson, wife of Dewey's earliest political booster, once said: "You've really got to know Tom Dewey to dislike him." But that was some time ago. Now Dewey improves with knowing, as he has improved with age. That's why people go to school, why young men have to get knocked around, why big corporations pick executives who have been seasoned. A president of the United States also has to be seasoned. For that job requires more skill, more knowhow, more judgment, more vision than any other in the world.

Rating the Candidates—Of the active GOP candidates today I regard Tom Dewey as the best qualified to be president of the United States. (This does not include such inactive candidates as modest Governor Warren of California who will be discussed in a later column) . . . I give Dewey this rating for the following reasons: 1, he has been an excellent governor of New York; 2, he has shown good judgment in picking men; 3, his record with labor and minority groups is satisfactory; 4, he has weathered the buffeting of political experience and benefited from it.

* * *

Tolerant and Liberal.

Dewey Gestapo—One thing that once worried me about Dewey was his cutthroat tactics as a New York prosecutor. He rode roughshod over civil liberties, held witnesses in jail for weeks . . Of course, cleaning up New York gangsterdom is tough, but even so, the nation's basic liberties can't be flouted . . . Would Dewey, as president, set up a nation-wide gestapo? A lot of people have asked about that . . . A lot of people also got the answer, I think, from Dewey's debate with Stassen. Taking the unpopular side of the debate, Dewey showed a basic tolerance and liberalism which I wasn't sure he had before. Communism, he argued, has got to be wiped out by making the American system better, not by throwing political unbelievers into jail.

Financial Backing—If Dewey enters the White House his fiscal policies will be dominated by his good friend, Winthrop Aldrich, head of the Chase National Bank and a member of the Rockefeller clan. They have long been close . . . Aldrich belongs to the old school of blue-stocking New York Republicans who believe that the government should be run well, but primarily for themselves. Some of them, such as Henry L. Stimson, have turned out to be great men . . . Some of them, such as the late Tom Lamont of the J. P. Morgan firm, have been more liberal than the Johnny-come-latelies to political power—the Hallecks, the Kems and the Jenners, for instance.

If the Republicans pick him, and six months later Thomas E. Dewey is sitting in the White House he will operate exactly the opposite from Harry Truman. Instead of snap decisions from hard-drinking, meagre-brained aides, Dewey will formulate policy only after a group of earnest experts sit up half the night debating. His decisions may be slow, but they will be very carefully worked out.

Assignment: America

Dollars Cordially Invited

By KENNETH L. DIXON

WASHINGTON — Don't let anybody kid you that national presidential nominating conventions are purely political.

They're also big business—not to mention little business.

Of course, there's a rumor going the rounds that the Republican convention at Philadelphia opening tomorrow is somehow concerned with politics, and there is undoubtedly some truth to it.

But a glance through this correspondent's recent mail leaves little doubt that many an enterprising business man is out to make an honest dollar during the big shindig.

Generally speaking the mailed advertisements, folders and "service letters" are divided into three classes, (1) Those who don't know I'm going to the convention, (2) Those who somehow have found out, but don't know in what capacity I'm going, and (3) Those who know I'm going and why.

In the first category come the offers to sell me a new radio or television set—dirt cheap, too. Just a few dollars down, and a few more every now and then, and I can sit happily at home and see and hear the convention antics much more pleasantly than if I were attending. (More truth than poetry to that, too.)

Several of the other offers are what you might call offshoots of the radio-television plan. That is to say, the liquor stores have come through with "convention offers" of special buys to make entertaining cheaper during the week, just in case you're tossing a convention-television party for the neighbors.

Also, the service firms have offered to give the old receiving set a quick once-over-lightly to be sure it's working right. And, of course, several restaurants and bars have sent reminder notes that their television sets are going to be in tip-top shape and tuned in to the convention all the time.

* * *

Everything Made Easy.

IN THE second category come the broadsides and time-tables from the railroad and airline companies. It's astonishing how easy it's going to be to get to Philadelphia—so easy, in fact, that I could commute there and back with no trouble at all, they point out, adding that I can reserve space right now for every single day's round trip.

People who obviously are under the impression that I'm a delegate, or at least a delegate's understudy, have bombarded me with offers to peddle candidate buttons, favorite-son ribbons, party hats, tie-pin elephants, whistles, placards, streamers, badges, horns and various other kinds of noise-makers. (I'm beginning to suspect things won't be too quiet in the convention hall.)

Naturally, the liquor people cordially invite you to contact their Philadelphia representatives for any entertaining beverages you may require—or else buy it here and take it along.

In the third category, the boys with enterprise really get down to business. A typewriter repair shop has reminded me gently that it won't do to have the old portable throw a piston right in the middle of the proceedings. They'll be glad to clean it, change the ribbon, oil it and give it a complete going-over, all in 24 hours, or less, if necessary.

The office-supply people point out that they have plenty of copy paper, carbons, mimeograph machines and the like available. A secretarial service in Washington is willing to handle all my phone calls and check or forward my mail while I'm away.

One in Philadelphia can provide speedy shorthand experts to take notes during the sessions or take dictation over the phone if necessary and rush out the transcribed copy. And messenger and telegraphic service will be available all over the place, so they say.

One Man's Opinion

—By WALTER KIERNAN

PHILADELPHIA . . . Three women delegates are here wearing the old look. So are the candidates . . . the old hungry look.

* * *

And some members of the American Society of Magicians have dropped over from Atlantic City . . . They want to see the convention make eight candidates disappear.

* * *

So far there are no volunteers for the vice presidency . . . not even Wallace or Truman want it this year and they've had it.

* * *

Rumors that Mr. Truman might withdraw as a candidate are not believed in Philadelphia . . . The feeling is that no man ever hung up the phone on a contest offering $75,000 a year and free use of a house, yacht, plane, and combined networks.

* * *

As one delegate put it . . . "offered a choice between something and nothing an average man unhesitatingly accepts something."

Book Supplies Answer

By ELSIE ROBINSON

THERE is one question before which every parent quails, yet which they are inevitably asked by some curious tyke.

That question is, "Where did I come from, Mother?"

Scores of times parents have sent me letters or authors have sent books for review on this vital problem. Always I have hesitated to answer or review. Either the book was written in pedantic style beyond the child's understanding or it lacked delicacy and grace, or ran counter to some creed.

And yet there is no more important question in life. A child's whole attitude toward sex may be warped by that first questioning. He may receive false or filthy answers which may make sex seem forever coarse and bestial and cause him to shrink even from his own parents.

Most of the letters which parents write bemoan the invisible and mysterious wall which has grown up between them and their children, a wall which is due solely to the misunderstanding of sex.

* * *

Long-Awaited Book.

AT LAST I have received a book which meets every objection and which is highly endorsed by educators, including Catholic, Protestant and Jewish clergymen. One can hardly think of any home which would not benefit by its presence or of any parent who would not be helped.

This book is "The Story of Life" by Ellis W. Whiting, published by Wilcox & Follette Co., 1255 South Wabash Ave., Chicago 5, Ill. Both the author and his wife have been public school teachers and it was as a labor of love that this book was written after a vain search for a suitable volume for their own six year old daughter. It is now in its 18th printing.

No other book on sex has ever been designed for the youngest in the family. It is not designed, however, for children of all ages for it does not go into the latter stage of reproduction.

It is for little children—for the toddlers who are already beginning to pester you with questions. And it's done with sensitive, loving understanding of the little one's bewilderment.

This is not merely a "birds and flowers" book. Here is the whole story of the beginning of life, told in a friendly, beautiful way and adjusted to the smaller child's limited vocabulary. Nothing that is essential is omitted. There are no coy evasions, no sugar coated fairy tales. It is as honest and frank as any scientist's report and it answers every question which a child might ask.

And last, but by no means least, in these days of high prices, it is a small and inexpensive book—only $1.25.

Baby's Eyes

—By ANNE CAMPBELL

What makes a baby's eyes compelling
Is not the cosmic wisdom dwelling
In azure eyes with mild tears wet.
His innocent, wide gaze keeps telling
That he has not seen evil yet.

What makes a baby's eyes the mirror
Of everything the soul holds dearer
Than its own being is: The pet
In whom we seem to see God clearer,
Has never looked on evil yet!

Farmer's Diary

How Much Education?

By CALVIN A. BYERS

HOW much education does a farmer need? Should farm boys go to college to learn farming?

In the first place, education and book learning are not synonymous. Education is a continuous process, and all a college can do is to stimulate the desire to know. The actual learning is always up to the student himself. It is quite possible to waste time in college, if a boy lacks capacity or interest in what he is doing.

Agricultural colleges offer short courses in such subjects as dairying, farm accounts, etc., that will keep a man up-to-date on the newest methods and equipment. If a boy wants to farm and knows that he can become established in farming—if, for instance, he is his Dad's partner on a fair-sized farm—he would do well to train himself in those things which their farm most needs . . . soil conservation, perhaps, or bookkeeping, or animal husbandry. A two-year college course will furnish such a boy with considerable insight and give him cultural assets worthwhile.

Experience shows that most four-year college graduates in agriculture do not return to the farm. They go into fields of research, or take technical training which lands them in government jobs—agricultural extension work, experiment stations, soil conservation technicians, or perhaps farm cooperative managers.

So, I would say, if you are a young man, ready for college, who grew up on a farm, decided whether you want to remain a farmer, and if you do, take a two-year agricultural course, or a few terms of training and when you find out where your greatest interests are, read everything you can find along those lines, for the rest of your life. Finally, you'll become a really educated farmer. In the meantime, you'll live well.

If you like farm life, but like to study, too—if you have a gift for speaking or for writing—take a four-year college course in some smaller college, then go to a big agricultural school and specialize in whichever phase of agriculture you like best. Possibly you'll make a name for yourself, and become a future U. S. secretary of agriculture.

Dave Boone Says:

THE WHOLE country sympathizes with that mother who wrote her congressman, after paying 47 cents and a ten-cent tax for some baby cream, asking since when had something soothing for a baby's bottom become such a luxury. You don't know how prices have skyrocketed until you buy some skin cream, an aspirin tablet, a little talcum powder or something in that line these days.

* * *

But the mothers and fathers of America will have to set up a terrific howl if they expect congressmen or state and city legislators to give them a break if it affects their spending and big tax programs!

A colorful and able educator died the other day when Dr. Nelson Hume, founder of Canterbury school in New Milford, Connecticut, passed away suddenly. He had devoted his life to the young.

* * *

Although in his late sixties, Dr. Hume had the gusto and drive of a man 20 years younger. He heard the final call up there in the beautiful hills where Canterbury school stands as his monument.

Brain Waves Give Indication Of Disorders In Personality

IOWA CITY, Iowa—(AP)—Brain waves are giving clues as to why some children and adults often are in social and legal hot water

The waves are electrical impulses recorded from the brain Certain abnormal waves are found with greater frequency in children and adults with certain personality disorders, studies here show

These people were not insane, or deficient in intelligence, nor did they have known diseases of the brain or nervous system. They were the so-called psychopathic personalities and behavior problem children, which include many delinquents, ne'er-do-wells, and "black sheep."

The brain wave study is one phase of the problem of psychopathic personality and behavior disorders in children being studied at the psychopathic hospital and State University of Iowa college of medicine

Study of the brain waves of parents of the children in trouble indicates that the p tterns often are inherited If one or both parents had an abnorma. pattern, the chances were that their offspring would have a similar one

TRACED TO ILLNESSES

Sometimes the unusual brain waves could be traced to illnesses or injuries of early childhood, although the child appeared to have recovered The younger the child at the time, and the more severe the illness or injury, the more likely he was to show the abnormal brain waves and personality problems.

In another phase of the study, characteristic traits of parents and children are being compared through personality tests. Many parents were found to be emotionally immature, having traits similar to those of the patients

It may be possible to connect the different kinds of unusual and unwanted behavior with certain unusual brain wave patterns and with different personality traits

The early lives of these patients, it was found, almost always were complicated by disturbing environments, such as broken homes, unstable parents, deaths, desertion and alcoholism. These are being studied in relation to personality and behavior.

Such information may help determine what part inheritance and environment play in the development of personality traits that lead to poor adjustment in life

Go Caveman For Housing

LARAMIE, Wyo —(AP)— Cavemen of the atomic age may live in luxuries underground surpassing ordinary housing. Professor Bahngrell W. Brown of the University of Wyoming, writing in Chemical and Engineering News, says subterranean sites can be made more healthful than overground, because rock is a poor conductor of heat. Temperature and humidity can be regulated easier underground

It even becomes feasible, he said, to control bacteria and viruses, two great sources of disease Subterranean places, he says, are safer from fire and from earthquakes Poison gas can be kept out more easily, and this includes the radioactive poison gases

Here's How to Prevent Vacation Burglaries

Vacation time is a busy time—for burglars.

Police Chief Jesse Schwab last week issued some "helpful hints" on how to avoid having your home entered while you're on vacation. And he warned that failure to observe "elementary precautions is an open invitation" to burglars.

Last year some 370,000 burglaries occurred in the United States, of which more than 35 per cent involved homes. In other words, that's more than 140,000 residences burglarized in one year, according to the files of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

In Mansfield, Chief Schwab said, more than 50 homes were broken into during 1947. Generally speaking, he said, more home burglaries occurred in summer months than in the winter.

"That's because of vacationists, open windows, hooking screen doors instead of locking doors and other careless acts more likely to occur in summer than in winter," the chief explained.

Chief Schwab can't offer any guarantee with his rules to prevent burglaries, but he did state that observance of simple precautions will eliminate those "open invitations." And the police department is more than happy to co-operate with vacationists.

"If you'll notify us before you leave on your vacation, we'll keep an eye on the house and make a check from time to time. But the main job is up to the home-owner himself in taking the necessary steps."

A COLLECTION OF NEWSPAPERS AND MILK BOTTLES IS A "WELCOME" MAT TO BURGLARS DURING YOUR VACATION
FASTEN ALL DOORS AND WINDOWS SECURELY BEFORE YOU LEAVE!
TELL YOUR NEIGHBORS WHEN YOU'RE GOING AND WHEN YOU'LL RETURN SO THEY CAN REPORT ANY UNUSUAL ACTIVITY ABOUT YOUR HOUSE DURING YOUR ABSENCE!
AUGUST
LIGHT UP THE DARK ENTRANCES TO YOUR HOUSE — AND ENJOY YOUR VACATION WITH MORE SECURITY
MORRIS

Make arrangements to have your mail forwarded or held. This avoids a jammed mail box which is noticeable to would-be burglars. Also arrange with your neighbor to remove daily circulars and other hand-outs which accumulate on your porch or front steps.

Before you leave for your vacation, tell your newsboy and milkman to cut off service for the period of your absence. Nothing quite so publicizes an unoccupied house as newspapers scattered on the front porch and milk bottles on the back.

Be sure that all windows, doors and screens are fastened securely. Carelessness to lock windows is a common cause of burglaries.

Close the garage doors when you leave for your vacation. A garage door left open days on end is a dead giveaway to thieves.

If you're a professional man, do NOT give public notice that you won't be at your office for a period of weeks. Chief Schwab characterized this practice as "dangerous."

Inform your neighbor how you can be reached during your vacation so that if a burglary is committed, the police can reach you for aid in the investigation.

Try to avoid drawing blinds and shades to give the house a "shut up" appearance. Leave the house looking as normal as safety precautions permit.

Don't boast around the neighborhood of valuables and cash which you might keep in the house. Such information easily could leak to persons who might find the temptation too great.

Don't hide the keys to the house in the "conventional" hiding places such as under the porch mat, on a nail inside an outside closet or other obvious "secret" places.

A precaution that should be taken throughout the summer months is to avoid merely hooking a screen door instead of locking the door itself, Chief Schwab said. A hooked screen door is an open invitation to burglars, he said.

If arrangements can be made with a trustworthy neighbor, dark areas which lead access to the house should be lighted at night. Few burglars will risk entering a lighted house. Chief Schwab emphasized, however, that a neighbor should check the light in case it should burn out.

It Wouldn't Help to Revise Charter

Stand Fast—and Give U. N. a Chance, Leaders Agree

By ADELAIDE KERR

LAKE SUCCESS—(AP)—Your worry because the United Nations has not lived up to all your hopes will not be resolved by revising the charter now, in the opinion of the men who head the Big Five delegations.

Nor do they think that a new organization is the answer.

Delegation heads of some smaller powers favor revision of the charter, although they do not necessarily regard it as a panacea for all ills.

Their comment was given in reply to an inquiry by the Associated Press. Heads of nine U.N. delegations were asked what needs to be done to obtain an effective world organization for peace.

The men who grapple daily with U.N.'s problems were requested to answer any or all of three questions:

Do you favor revision of the United Nations charter and, if so what kind? Do you think a new organization is required and, if so, what kind? Have you any other suggestion? All replied. Their solutions varied, but one theme ran through them all: "Stand fast and man the oars."

GROMYKO

Here is the gist of their comment:

"I do not favor revision of the United Nations charter," said Dr. Tingfu F. Tsiang of China. "It has not had time enough for a trial. The difficulties that we now face were due to the deep conflict. Between the U.S.S.R. and the United States; they are not due to defects in the charter.

CITES U. S. CONSTITUTION

Said Alexandre Parodi of France

"Only three years have passed since the United Nations charter was adopted at San Francisco. Three years after the proclamation of the constitution of the United States, was it the efficient instrument that it is today? And yet no premature reform occurred to alter its terms. Those whose job it was to apply it, simply strove, by their daily action to compensate for the gaps of a text, whose arrangements could not solve ahead of the time the multitudinous problems arising from the political life in the United States. May we be inspired by as great a wisdom!"

From Sir Alexander Cadogan of the United Kingdom came this comment:

"Only the useful revision of the charter which could be undertaken would be with the support of two-thirds majority by members of the United Nations including five permanent members of the security council, at a later date when the United Nations has had some experience of working under the conditions which it was intended to operate.

"The United Nations was intended to function after the foundations of peace had been established by the conclusion of peace treaties and with the joint support of the great powers. A revision of the charter would not remove the difficulties which inevitably arise from the absence of peace settlements or the minimum of cooperation which is essential to the success of such an international organization.

AUSTIN

"No new world organization could be created with the consent of all the powers necessary to make it a success; and any other organization without such support could not be devised so as to avoid the difficutlies which at present prevent the United Nations from satisfactory achievement of its purposes. World opinion should concentrate upon removing the obstacles which have prevented the United Nations from making the progress which was hoped for and not delude itself into thinking that formal changes, E G. in voting procedure, are all that the United Nations needs."

BACKS CONFERENCE

Sr. Jose Arce of the Argentine delegation, president of the general assembly, advocated calling a general conference to give all U N. members a chance to discuss and decide whether the moment is ripe for reviewing the charter.

He said, if he should represent Argentina at such a conference, he would advocate the review with the aim of eliminating or diminishing to veto power to prevent its operation on questions of peaceful settlement and the admission, suspension or expulsion of members.

Sr. Arce declared, "It must be discovered whether or not the time has come for eliminating or amending (the veto) or . . . If it is to be retained until 1955 in conformity with Article 109, Paragraph 3, which provides that a general conference is to be held in that year." Sr Arce does not think a new organization is required.

Warren Austin of the United States and Andrei Gromyko of the U.S.S.R. both said "no" to questions of revision and a new organization. But Senator Austin has said that the Big Five previously considered revision concerning the use of the veto on matters of peaceful settlement and upon petitions for membership and that the United States was the only one willing to amend the charter in this respect. He declared that a feasible time to amend the charter in this respect has not arrived.

CADOGAN

"What is necessary is fundamental adjustment between east and west," Austin said. "This will have to be undertaken at the suitable time."

New Zealand's Sir Carl Berendsen, doughty battler for the rights of smaller powers, strongly favors revision of the charter to eliminate the one veto power. "(It) stultifies every possibility of the United Nations' becoming . . . an effective system of collective security and restricts it entirely to the functions of a 'talking shop'," he said.

On the question of a new organization, Sir Carl declared: "If and when—and I hope we need not—we must choose between a system of collective security which is universal and will not work (because of the veto) and a system which is not universal but will work (without the veto) then I shall unhesitatingly choose the latter."

They Eat In Two Installments

Hungry Actors Choosy

By JEAN MEEGAN

NEW YORK—(AP)—When actors are successful enough to eat regularly, they can't. Nightly around 6:30 they face a gastronomic crisis.

They are hungry, even as you and I, but they can't have dinner—one of the peculiar privations of the profession. A menu that would be ideal for the rest of us is too heavy for the thespic temperament. On the other hand total abstinence leaves him too weak for work.

Certain restaurants cater to this dietary dilemma. Sardi's "21," the Stork club and Toots Shor's are geared for "split meals." Their a la carte menus major in such times as Welsh rarebits, eggs benedict, hamburgers—all satisfactory dishes for people on their way into a world of make believe. They also specialize in the abrupt expensive efficiency necessary to get their customers out in time.

Vincent Sardi jr. puts it this way:

"You don't sell any $25 dinners to actors, but they're in a couple of times a night We tried regular table d'hote dinners—soups, a hearty meat, potatoes, another vegetable and a sweet like other restaurants, but they wouldn't go for it. They swallow some soup or a sandwich, or maybe a lamb chop with some spinach before the show."

The second installment of supper is more fun Day is done. They can have a nip or two. In the easty camaraderie of each other's company they have the digestion for richer viands: steak tidbits, crab meat au gratin, cold meats, perhaps a good piece of cheese.

WELLES 'BEST EATER'

Toots Shor nominates Orson Welles as the best eater in show business, although not the exacting gourmet Paul Draper is.

"Welles," says Shor, "is my knife and fork boy." He is the kind of a supper partner who not only orders triple cut roast beef—but eats yours, too.

Seating arrangements in these places are a science. Sardi says "the theater has all the fights and feuds of a small town." Proprietors try to be careful where to seat sweethearts, separated couples, old associates who are on the outs.

Important Broadway people, such as Louis Calhern, Helen Hayes, the Gishes, are unobtrusive patrons. They sit quietly in corners. Katharine Cornell likes an inconspicuous table in back and a special salad she concocts of greens and anchovies smothered in garlic dressing.

Occasionally there is a temperamental explosion on the premises of one of these select spots. At such moments the restauranteur must ask "are these people worth all the trouble they cause?" Invariably, they come to the same conclusion: "Yes."

"The theater crowd attaches importance to a place," Sherman Billingsley of the Stork club says. "They're the atmosphere other people pay to see."

Long GOP Battle at Philadelphia Predicted

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE

WASHINGTON—(AP)—This year's battle of ballots for the Republican presidential nomination may be the longest in 68 years.

Longest Republican contest was in 1880 when James A. Garfield was nominated on the 36th ballot to break a deadlock between former President Grant and James G Blaine. Garfield, a very dark horse, had only three votes on the 33rd ballot.

Second longest GOP struggle was in 1920 when Warren G. Harding was chosen on the tenth ballot. Republican leaders in a "smoke-filled Chicago hotel room" agreed on Harding as a compromise to end a deadlock between Gen. Leonard Wood, Governor Frank Lowden of Illinois, and Hiram Johnson of California.

Veteran political observers say they will not be surprised if it requires more than ten ballots to get a 1948 standard-bearer. Indications are that when balloting begins in Philadelphia next week, no candidate will come close to having the required 548 majority of the 1094 convention votes.

Republicans are hoping that meeting in Philadelphia will bring them luck as it did in 1900 when Theodore Roosevelt popped into the national political picture. That was the year they renominated President McKinley as "a dependable custodian of the full dinner-pail" and named Teddy as his running mate to give "oomph" and a progressive tinge to the ticket.

Roosevelt, roughrider hero of the Battle of San Juan Hill, stumped the country against silver-tongued William Jennings Bryan while McKinley conducted his second "front-porch" campaign. Roosevelt's popularity did much to offset Bryan's strength with "the plain people" and the Republicans won by a sizeable margin of the electoral vote.

Teddy Roosevelt's most spectacular convention performance, however, came 12 years later. It led to the biggest split in the party and the election of Democratic Woodrow Wilson. The "regular" Republicans were prepared to renominate President William H. Taft when the rough-rider stormed into Chicago, the convention city, to lead his own fight for the presidential nomination.

Bounding out of a train from New York, Teddy displayed his teeth in the familiar "feeling bully" grin and waved his big sombrero at a cheering crowd. A few minutes later he appeared on a hotel balcony and launched into a speech charging the Republican high command with the "naked theft" of convention delegates.

Rival delegates had fist fights in the convention hall. Hostile shouts interrupted the address of dignified Chairman Elihu Root. The Roosevelt supporters lost contest after contest for delegates' seats.

The accredited Roosevelt delegates abstained from voting for a presidential nominee and Taft won easily on the first ballot. The Roosevelt backers volted, held a separate convention of progressives," and nominated the rough-rider for the presidency.

The presidential lightning which struck Dark Horse Harding on the tenth ballot in 1920, was said to have been manipulated by a so-called "senatorial oligarchy," composed of Boies Penrose of Pennsylvania, the elder Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, James Watson of Indiana, and Reed Smoot of Utah.

Most unusual political proceeding of 1920, however, was the Socialists' nomination for the presidency of Eugene Debs, then in federal prison at Atlanta. Debs, an ardent pacifist, had been convicted of violating the espionage act during World War I. He received almost a million votes.

Ohio Link Too Costly

Pittsburgh Cranes End Railroad Dream

PITTSBURGH—(AP)—Two giant cranes are picking the bones of a dream of transcontinental railroad empire.

The 44-year-old Wabash bridge, once the world's largest cantilever span, is headed for the scrap heap. The bridge was the product of a railroad war at the turn of the century, a lush era of finance.

Theprize at stake was the fat freight tonnage from Pittsburgh, which then was more than the combined total of New York, Philadelphia and Chicago. Freight shipments from Pittsburgh ran to about 75,000,000 tons a year.

A staggering total of freight was being moved by the Pennsylvania railroad. But there was a clamor for even more freight movement.

These demands caught the ear of George Jay Gould. He was well heeled for financing the new railroad with a $72,000,000 railroad and telegraph fortune left by his fabulous father, Jay Gould.

He got off to a good start on his coast-to-coast railroad dream, controlling a 10,000-mile network of western lines stretching from Utah to Texas, Detroit, Chicago, Memphis and eastward to Jewett, Ohio.

That left a 60-mile blank from Jewett to Pittsburgh. It also left open the Pittsburgh-to-seacoast leg, but this Gould solved by buying the Western Maryland railway for $9,000,000,000 in 1902. Its terminus was Baltimore.

BATTLES DIFFICULTIES

Battling endless difficulties, Gould built the Jewett-Pittsburgh link, called the Wabash-Pittsburgh Terminal railway. It was an extension of Gould's Wabash railroad operating in the midwest. It is still connected indirectly with the Wabash, although the link has long since passed from Gould control.

Gould started construction of the Wabash bridge over the Monongahela river before he had assurances from the city that he would be able to run trains into the downtown business section.

Adversity dogged Gould's every step. Once a section of the bridge collapsed, with a loss of 40 lives. There were strikes, riots, the panic of 1907, smallpox epidemics, floods, landslides, tunnel cave-ins, politics.

Pittsburgh even prohibited Wabash engines from burning soft coal in the city—while rival railroads were permitted to burn what they pleased.

Nevertheless the first Wabash train rumbled gaily out of Pittsburgh and over the bridge in July, 1904. Gould offered cut rates on freight transportation and hoped for a big melon. But just when his dream appeared within his grasp, the Wabash-Pittsburgh Terminal railway plunged into the hands of receivers. This was in 1908, after only a four-year existence.

$400,000 A MILE

The railway had collapsed under the weight of its own battle. The 60-mile link connecting Pittsburgh and Jewett, O., became the most costly in railroad history. The price was $25,000,000, or some $400,000 a mile.

The ornate Wabash depot in downtown Pittsburgh, monument to a dramatic era of railroad battles, had Italian marble walls and solid bronze railings. It alone cost $1,250,000 but it served few passengers. The Wabash freight station cost $1,000,000 and the Wabash bridge another million.

After all the expenditure, the expected harvest of freight receipts failed to mature. The best the Wabash could show was 3,000,000 tons of freight moved in 1907.

A heavy blow was the sale of Andrew Carnegie's steel interests to J. P. Morgan. Morgan paid Carnegie $500,000,000 for his Carnegie company and formed the gigantic U.S. Steel corporation with it. Carnegie had promised his freight business to Gould, while Morgan was on the side of the Pennsylvania railroad.

The Pittsburgh-Jewett, O., link is still used by the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railway company, which operates in the Pittsburgh area although not in the city itself.

Loss of the terminal meant there was no use for the million-dollar bridge, so its 8,000 tons of steel are being removed for scrap. It's taking six months to dismantle the structure, which was three years abuilding.

TESTIFIES - - Princess Doris Farid-Es Sultaneh, the former Mrs. S. S. Kresge, walks in the federal district court building in Newark, N. J., where she testified in trial of Constantino Vincent Riccardi, who faces federal charges he transported illegally across state line $18,000 worth of the Princess' household goods. She told of a whirlwind courtship by Riccardi.

Title Issue Clouded

Major Concerns Step Up Search For Oil In Ocean

NEW ORLEANS—(AP)—Major oil companies are stepping up their search for the liquid black gold treasure buried under the Gulf's waters off the Louisiana coast—even though they're not sure yet who owns it.

While federal and state governments argue over title to the rich offshore gulf bottom, new wells are being drilled from man-made hurricane-proof islands of steel and wood.

The companies are operating on leases from the state, and have paid Louisiana more than $16,000,000 for drilling rights in the past four years. They are going on the assumption that Congress will pass a pending bill confirming state ownership of bottoms to a distance 27 miles from shore.

Two years ago President Truman vetoed a similar bill. And in 1947, the U. S. Supreme court ruled the federal government had primary rights in California's coastal waters.

But the present bill has the backing not only of the coastal states, but of 24 others which want title to mineral resources under inland waters.

The major oil companies have generally sided with the states, preferring their leasing terms to those of the federal government.

INTEREST HIGH

Interest in ownership of the coastal bottoms has been particularly high since Kerr McGee Industries brought in the first producing well in the open waters of the Gulf last Nov. 14.

The Kerr McGee wildcat came in at about 1,700 feet, in rather shallow water 10 miles off Pointe Au Fer island, about 85 miles southwest of New Orleans.

The state conservation department has allowed production of 400 barrels a day from the discovery well. The company says it could make 900. However, there hasn't been any commercial production at all pending settlement with the coast guard of details as to types of barges and pipelines which may be used to carry off the fuel.

Some twenty companies have leased sections of the Gulf floor, and plan definite operations costing 25 to 30 million dollars. Only half the available acreage has been assigned by the state.

Kerr McGee is drilling at a second location with plans for several more on the 40,000 acres it has leased. Stanolind Oil and Gas has established a marine department and will soon begin drilling at four open-water sites.

The California company is moving in equipment off Vermilion parish, and Humble is set to start work at an $800,000 permanent platform off Grand Isle, south of New Orleans.

17-STORY STRUCTURE

The Humble project shows how ambitious an initial venture must be in the Gulf operations. The drilling base is as high as a 17-story building. As many as seven tests are from this base, going down 13,000 feet.

Humble's mammoth platform is the first to be erected in water as deep as 50 feet. It covers a half acre, and is anchored by steel piles driven nearly 200 feet into the Gulf floor. Parts exposed to waves are wound with layers of glass, fiber and tar to prevent corrosion.

The derrick floor rises 60 feet above the water. Two decks, each a third the size of a football field, provide living quarters for 54 men, racks for 15,000 feet of pipe, space for much other equipment, and for enough food and materials for two weeks' operations without new supplies.

The establishment is designed to withstand winds of 120 miles per hour and waves 35 feet high.

Grubstakes in this kind of prospecting run high. But there's black gold under them thar oyster shells and mud.

Tacoma Building Replacement For 'Galloping Gertie' Bridge

TACOMA, Wash.— (AP) — The bridge that shook itself to pieces is being put back together again. A new Tacoma Narrows has begun to take shape on the wreck of the old.

Nearly eight years ago the original span—Galloping Gertie, she was called—bucked and buckled in a quartering wind and plunged to the bottom of the bay.

Residents of this region gave the first bridge its nickname because of its tendence to undulate, or gallop, when the wind blew. On her last day she galloped so hard she popped her rivets and ripped her girders.

Her stumps still stand in the tide rip and her empty abutments hang on either shore. They will be used to anchor the new bridge which the Washington Toll Bridge Authority hopes will be more stable.

Crews are at work blasting the concrete pedestals on which the old tower legs stood. They will be replaced with wider ones to carry the new span.

Charles E. Andrew, WTBA engineer, says three-fifths of the old anchorages will be used. The rest —5,900 yards of concrete—are being blown loose. Each base will measure 110 feet long, 90 feet wide and 50 feet thick. They will be able to stand a pull of 18,000 tons at each end without budging.

Then construction will start on the towers. Wider and higher than the old ones, they will stand 2,800 feet apart. The bridge will be about a mile long, over all.

Giant cables 21 inches through —four more than the old ones— will be spun from tower to tower and from tower to shore. The last step is laying the truss deck. Four lines and two sidewalks wide, it will be laid down from each shore to meet in the middle. Engineers say it will be far more rigid than Gertie's original girder-type deck.

The job is scheduled for completion in a little over two years at a cost of about $15,500,000, counting the usable remains of the old bridge, valued at about $3,500,000. The old bridge cost about $7,000,000.

After eight years of probing the problem of what made the first Gertie fall, the engineers think the first bridge was too narrow, so they have fattened the new one up. And because her eight-foot solid wall of girder deck caught too much wind, the new one will be open.

U. S.-Soviet 'Hot Spots' Seen Quiet

No Shooting War Likely at Present

By SIGRID ARNE

WASHINGTON —(AP)— State department men think things will be quiet, at least for a while, in the three spots where Americans and Russians rub elbows most intimately—Trieste, Korea and Berlin.

They don't look for anything like a shooting war over any of the areas. None of them now presents more than a stalemate. But a stalemate may mean that the growth of communist-controlled areas has been stopped

TRIESTE

This is the Adriatic port city which both Italy and Yugoslavia wanted in 1946 when the Allies wrote the Italian peace treaty. The U S. backed Italy, and the USSR backed Yugoslavia.

The deadlock was broken when both agreed to make Trieste a free international zone, to be governed by a man chosen by the United Nations security council. From the end of the war, on, Trieste has been occupied by Yugoslav troops in the south and British-Americans in the north. They were to get out after the governor was chosen and order secured.

But the security council has not agreed on a governor. The Russians have opposed all the candidates proposed by the western powers.

Then, this March, the U. S. said in effect that the Italian peace treaty terms for Trieste won't work and that therefore the city should be turned back to the Italians. At first Russia refused to comment, and then called the American move "undemocratic."

On one side is Yugoslavia with a big army. On the other side is Italy, a one-time axis partner, now practically disarmed.

But if the U. S. proposal to put Trieste back into Italy should go through, would the Yugoslavs want to fight a whole nation—Italy?

For the time being Trieste will probably remain a stalemate, with the troops remaining.

KOREA

This is the most uncertain area Korea was freed from the Japanese in 1945, and shortly a joint American-Russian control was set up until the Koreans could form an independent government.

But up till now the Americans have never been able to get an agreement from the Russians on Korean elections. So at the last U. N. assembly the U S. proposed and won a vote to send a U.N. commission to Korea to supervise elections. Russia boycotted the plan.

The elections were held on May 10, but only in the southern—the U. S.—zone. A Korean assembly has started work. The Russians continue to occupy the northern half of the nation and have sent no delegates to the new government in the U.S. zone.

Under the U.N. resolution the American-Russian troops should get out when the new Korean government requests it and the Koreans can do it when they consider it "practicable."

Already Korean leaders have voiced hope their "American friends" will stick around, so it may be some time before it appears "practicable" to the Koreans for American troops to leave. The U. S. government has said nothing on the subject.

However, if the Americans stay, there is another stalemate.

BERLIN

Slices of this city are run by the Big Four—The U S, Britain, France and Russia. But the city is an island inside the Russian zone of occupation.

Recently the Russians put blocks in the road of getting supplies in and out for the three western sections of Berlin. Moscow didn't explain, but western diplomats said it looked as though the Russians were taking steps to force them out and take over Berlin.

The American commander, Gen. Lucius D. Clay, has said the Americans are there to stay. He is on solid treaty ground. At Potsdam Stalin signed an agreement that all four powers sit in Berlin.

But the allied control council for all of Germany has bogged down. It hasn't met since March, when the Russian delegate walked out in a huff. The council's stalemate means that plans to unify Germany must wait.

Broken-Down Vehicle Becomes Luxurious Home-on-Wheels

Mansfield Veteran Converts School Bus Into Trailer

By MARGUERITE MILLER

There's nothing so unusual about going to school in a school bus . . not unless that school is a good 1,000 miles away and the school bus is your home.

That's the way it is with Wayne McBride, 25-year-old Mansfield ex-GI who leaves today for Tulsa, Okla. to begin his engineering training at the Sparton School of Aeronautics.

McBride, who served as a primary flight instructor for Army cadets at Randolph field during the war, received his first flying lessons at Mansfield airport. Last week he left his production clerk position at Westinghouse to train for the career he's chosen for his life's work.

McBride's determination to become an aeronautical engineer is matched only by his resourcefulness to make a home for his family DESPITE housing conditions.

"When I got out of the army you just couldn't find a place to live," McBride began. "The only thing to do was to buy a house trailer."

The trailer was bought and moved to McBride's sister's home, three miles east of Crestline on U. S. Route 30. The little family had a roof over their heads but not much room underfoot.

Then about a year ago last Christmas McBride got an idea. He'd build a trailer.

BUYS SCHOOL BUS

A tour of every available source of material resulted. At the end, McBride wound up with a much-used Ford school bus and with three surplus army gliders from the Shelby air depot.

"I was so discouraged when I saw that school bus," the young wife smiled. "The windows were all broken and it was a horrible shade of orange."

Right now, it's hard to visualize how the bus must have looked, because 10 months of every spare moment of McBride's time has made the bus one of the most convenient, best designed trailers made in any back yard.

In the first place, it's no longer that "horrible shade of orange." It's a soft blue-grey. The half-dozen windows left in the body are dressed with cut-down venetian blinds and little drapes and fitted with shiny copper screens.

By lifting the roof a foot, McBride realized a six-foot, two-inch ceiling in the trailer and more spacious storage facilities for the family's possessions.

STEP INTO CAB

Entrance to the trailer home is exactly the same as boarding any bus. You step into the cab, but from the next step on back, there's no resemblance whatsoever to the purpose for which the vehicle was made.

The first room is a combination kitchen, bedroom and play room for little Phyllis Kay and sewing room—all done up in approximately six square feet of space.

"I had to cut the sewing machine down to get it in because Florence just couldn't leave it behind," he said.

The sewing machine is placed in front of one of the windows at the top of which is fastened a fluorescent light rod to give needed light for sewing. Next to the sewing machine is a seven cubic-foot refrigerator, cached in a plywood compartment and based with a roomy drawer for McBride's tools.

On the other side of the room is the linoleum-topped built-in sink and gasoline range, completely enveloped in plywood cupboards.

SPACE-SAVING IDEAS

The other room is a combination dinette and bedroom, the bench-type seats being designed to fold down and together. The collapsible table unhinges and is slid under the bed. Plywood cupboards for bedding are repeated in this room along with a 48-inch closet for clothing

Behind it all comes along a "trailer to the trailer," or in other words, the middle section from one of the gliders, cut down to make a utility trailer to carry the 500 quarts of food Mrs. McBride canned on the gasoline stove last year, Phyllis's tricycle, extra clothing and tools. Mounted on airplane wheels and equipped with a brake system, the trailer's trailer is covered with glider fabric.

And after those two years of schooling? Well, the McBrides are going to settle down on a farm in a house with lots of space.

"We both want a farm," Mrs. McBride beamed. "Of course Wayne was raised on a farm and he naturally likes it. I've been converted. My home's in Cleveland, but I love Mansfield and I hope we come back here after Wayne's through."

Peacetime Reserve Pool

Air Cargo Fleet Needed

By JAMES J. STREBIG

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Because a tremendous air cargo fleet will be needed in any future war, military and civilian transport experts have been wrestling with the problems of an adequate peacetime reserve pool

Thus far they have not announced a figure as finally accepted, but testimony before the president's air policy commission indicated 4,000 or 5,000 transport planes are desirable. The entire American transport-fleet in scheduled operations now is about 1,000 aircraft.

The military interest is primarily in a long-range, four-engine plane at least as large as the Douglas DC-6 or the Lockheed Constellation. The initial cost of a fleet of 4,000 planes of that size would be well over $4,000,000,000. The annual operating cost would be several billion dollars more if the planes were kept busy.

Aussuming the planes were flown an average of eight hours a day five days a week, with one in ten on the ground for maintenance, the available lift or working capacity would be 33,000,000,000 ton-miles a year A ton-mile means the movement of 2,000 pounds one mile

That is more than 60 times as much air cargo as was carried by United States air operators last year and four times as much as the less-than-carlot freight carried by rail It is 15 or 20 times as much lift as government experts have estimated might be needed for air freight needs in 1950.

A 4,000-plane fleet flying 40 hours a week would burn 2,750,000,000 gallons of gasoline a year, or 10 times as much as this country's airlines used last year. In the face of a threatened petroleum shortage, the extra burden would be unwelcome.

The Civil Aeronautics board told the President's commission that a 1,000-plane cargo fleet could handle 4,700 times as much cargo as was carried in 1946 by the existing fleet, mostly passenger planes The operating cost would be "virtually prohibitive," the board said.

But in the face of that, several witnesses suggested the need of 5,000 transport planes as an operating reserve for military emergency needs. (To the military a "transport plane" is one that can double as a cargo or troop carrier)

Those witnesses included Vice Admiral E. S. Land, president of the Air Transport association; C. R. Smith, chairman of American Airlines and wartime deputy chief of the Air Transport command, and Capt. C. H. Schildhauer, former Naval Air Transport Service official.

Most airline officials were inclined to be more conservative, with suggestions of 200 to 500 planes in the reserve pool.

When the Japs struck, the nation's domestic air fleet was about 365 planes. The military took half of them as the nucleus for organizing its own air transport services. Eventually about 16,000 transports of 25,000 pounds or more gross weight were built for the military.

The Military Air Transport service (mats), which does all of the hauling for the Army, Air Force and Navy, operates only 300 planes in transport service today. That wouldn't be a start toward wartime needs

What Americans call "the English walnut" is not native to the British Isles, but to the Balkans, Asia Minor, Persia and a region stretching eastward to China. However, early colonists introduced it here from England.

Dad Gets Big Hand From Mansfielders

This week's forum is dedicated to Dad—that long-suffering guy who comes home to knee-high grass after eight hours at the office, who is spring house-cleaning helper, winter snow-shoveler and year-round handy man around the house.

Despite all this, his chief and most important job is that he be a pal to his children.

A unanimous vote for Dad was given by this week's forum participants who, without exception, gave a big "Oh, no!" to the question: "Is father the 'forgotten man' of the family?"

Figuring that the man in question had a right to give a vote, too, we asked two fathers who seemed to think the family did quite well by them. One wife said her husband was a "wonderful husband and father." Children respectfully referred to their fathers as the "big shot" around the house.

Here are the answers:

EARL LEE, Bellville: "I hardly think so. I have four children living, one son killed overseas. I know my children haven't forgotten me. My one daughter in Columbus wants me to be there for dinner Sunday. My wife has been dead 17 years."

Earl Lee

STUART CLARK, 71 Parkwood boulevard: "Everyone in our family buys Dad gifts on Father's day. I don't think he's forgotten. I like to go fishing with him whenever he has time but he works pretty hard around the house and he doesn't have too much time for himself."

Stuart Clark

KARL SMITH, Jeromesville, R. D. 1: "We're not forgotten. In our family I'm looked up to for guidance and one thing and aonther. In fact, it's just like Father's day every day at our home with the two children."

Karl Smith

DEAN SMITH, 7, Jeromesville, R. D. 1: "No, fathers aren't forgotten. I like it now that it's summer and I can be with Daddy more. Mostly I like to work with him. We mow yards sometimes and feed the cows and pigs. I'm going to make up a surprise for him for Sunday."

Dean Smith

MRS. ROBERT STEVENS, 937 Maumee avenue: "Not in my family father isn't forgotten. I'd say every day was Father's day in our home. He's a wonderful husband and father. I don't believe fathers are forgotten men in any family."

Mrs. Stevens

JOHN WALTER, 112 Glenwood boulevard: "I think my father gets good attention most of the time. I've got a brother and sister and Dad's a good pal with all of us. He's a 'big shot' around our house and we all respect him.

John Walter

Florida Set For Storms And Floods

MIAMI, Fla. —(AP)— Florida will be better prepared this summer than ever before should another great hurricane roar in from the sea.

Stormproof building codes, expert forecasting and improved evacuation and disaster measures already have robbed the great tropical storms of much of their reputation as bone-crushers.

The emphasis now is on flood control. Floods are the natural companions of hurricanes.

An air of urgency prevails in the state as local phases of a projected $300,000,000 flood and water control program are rushed. This work is part of a master plan drawn up by Army engineers for 21 southeast Florida counties. Congress is considering the engineers' plan, which itself will cost some $200,000,000 of the total.

Florida remembers two great storms last year which caught the state with its dikes down. Flood waters swirled over rich farmland and into cities.

The toll of the hurricanes of last September and October in Florida was 23 dead, 227 persons injured, 178 homes destroyed, 3,544 buildings damaged, and 4,298 domestic animals killed.

These Red Cross figures do not include the millions in damage from flood waters invading thousands of homes, killing half the trees in many citrus groves, digging pot holes in hundreds of miles of highways or the miseries of families driven into flood refuges.

With the lessons of the violent, 155 m.p.h hurricane of last September and the deluge-producing storm of October fresh in mind, county boards and the Everglades drainage district have cleaned and deepened drainage canals, constructed miles of dikes to hold back new flood onslaughts, designated areas to which floodwaters will be diverted, and—possibly most important — accepted the Army engineers' master plan for conservation and control.

Meanwhile the cosmic forces that make hurricanes are at work in the tropics. Three minor storms already have whirled up from the Caribbean sea. One caused destructive floods in Haiti and the Dominican Republic.

Grady Norton, supervising forecaster for the weather bureau's storm warning service, began a preliminarfy hurricane watch June 1. A teletype "hurricane circuit" began operation between Brownsville, Texas, and Miami June 15. Another such circuit is in service between Miami and Boston.

Advice to Bridegrooms

Wary Husband Describes Pitfalls of Wedded Bliss

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The author, a peace-loving husband wishes to emphasize that any connection between incidents described in the following story and actual experience is coincidental.

By NORMAN DRESSER

Marriage is like jumping off a diving board—the first step takes a lot of courage, but after that it progressively becomes more exhilarating.

But once in a while you'll land flat on your face June being the month when so many brave young men take that first plunge into the uncharted Sea of Matrimony, a married man of nine months' experience offers some navigation aids to avoid reefs

After the honeymoon is over and you are settled in an apartment (assuming, with poetic license, that you've found one), a number of vexatious problems arise.

One of the chief enemies of a Happy Married Life is the alarm clock The very first night you've returned to town after the wedding trip, the problem likely will arise For two weeks the very thought of an alarm clock had not disturbed your wedding bliss

Then its ugly face starts at you just as you're prepared to doze off (or, if its face isn't luminous, its deafening tick reminds you) "Dear" you whisper tenderly, "did you set the alarm?" Naturally, she hasn't so you dutifully jump out of bed and set the darn thing

ASSERT YOURSELVES, MEN!

But that isn't all The next morning its piercing peal awakens the happy couple, and a major decision faces them: who is to turn the alarm off so they can grab a 20-minute snooze? Men, don't let chivalry overcome your basic good sense Just say gently, "'Darling, be a good wife and TURN THAT THING OFF!"

If a man and woman want to celebrate their golden wedding anniversary, it's best to come to an agreement concerning the alarm clock We have reached a happy compromise by rearranging the bedroom every few months so that for equal periods the clock is placed nearest one of the partners

Another problem facing the honeymooners upon their return to reality is money. The rules are very simple: never talk about money before breakfast, and do not talk about the lack of it after breakfast. In that manner, the subject is not discussed.

A statement which every bride invariably uses sooner or later is "Before we were married you used to . . ." (There are any number of variations to complete the sentence) There is no really adequate defense to this except to reply, in an astonished tone of voice, "Why, honey! How can you say that?" Veterans of five or more years' experience, we have observed maintain a stony silence

If your mate has any hair at all (and for the sake of a happy marriage, we hope she does) you face a lifelong struggle with bobbie-pins Like ants, they get in the darndest places In the Battle of the Bobbie-Pins, a man is foredoomed to failure About all he can do is pick them out of the washbowl daily and mildly remonstrate his wife when they're in the soup

Innumerable statistics on causes of divorce have been compiled, but not once have we seen figures on the number of divorces caused by toothpaste stealers. It is a crime of rare magnitude and, like opium smoking, becomes habitual unless nipped in the bud. Both men and women are susceptible to the habit

The only solution is to read the drug store advertisements, and when there's a one-cent sale, rush right down and buy two tubes of toothpaste for the price of one You not only save money but avoid larceny in the lavatory

Last but not least never criticize your bride's cooking Bicarbonate of soda still is inexpensive, whereas crockery is costly and hard to replace

Above all, never go in the kitchen while the oven's on and say 'Why don't you make apple pie like mother used to?"

The oven won't blow up, but your wife will

Truck Sales Reach Peak

Continuing its upward trend, new truck registrations for April are expected to establish a new monthly mark and may, for the first time in the industry's history surpass the 100,000 figure for any one month's sales, R L Polk and company, Detroit, statisticians for the automotive industry, reported yesterday

New truck registrations from 43 states, which normally account for 78.82 per cent of the total truck sales of the country, amounted to 84,956 units.

This compares with 68,001 units registered from the same states in April, 1946 It is expected that when all states are tabulated the total new truck registration may reach 107,000 units, should present ratios hold for states not yet tabulated

A total of 254 387 new passenger cars were registered from 44 states tabulated for April, as compared with 240 041 units from the same states last year More than a million new cars have been registered thus far this year

Ohio Below National Average In Payments To Local Units

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Ohio increased payments to local governments for highways, public welfare and schools by 22 4 percent last year, but still fell below the national average

Other state governments boosted by 24 5 per cent the sums turned over to cities, counties and similar units for such functions, an indication of rising costs everywhere

These figures are shown in a new study of state government finances issued jointly through Charles Sawyer, secretary of Commerce, and J C Capt. director of the census bureau

Ohio turned over $163,143,000 to local units in 1947, against $133,307,000 the year before. The 1947 Ohio total included $47,009,000 for highways, which was more than any other state California rated second with $40,196,000

Ohio also paid out $63,212,000 for schools and $15,927,000 for public welfare, all spent locally The study did not break down other state aids to local units.

Only five states—New York, California, Pennsylvania, Michigan and Texas—paid out more for schools. Eight states did better on public welfare, however, with New York leading with $110,382,000 New York also topped the school list with $131,786,000 for that purpose

4-H Club Makes Plans For Circus

Imagine! She Wants to Act, Too

Esther Williams Is Tired of Swimming

By HOWARD C. HEYN

HOLLYWOOD—(AP)—Just how far does a girl have to swim to become an actress?

Esther Williams is beginning to wonder Of course, Esther has been doing all right in a bathing suit The point is, comely Miss Williams is beginning to think of herself as an actress, however the studio may regard her talents

"I have never had," says she, "a really-good story

Now that is the second oldest cry in Hollywood. The hoariest, naturally, is: "I want more money." Tap dancers, nautch girls, crooners, boopers and acrobats wind up out here on the strength of their specialized abilities. Invariably, after a few pictures, they want to be actors.

Esther does have a point, though, when she says she's sick of silly musicals She's been in enough of them

'I know it's not for me to say what the studio does with me," she conceded earnestly 'They're going to put me in the things that make money I don't dislike musicals But I don't want to go on doing them forever"

What would Miss Williams like to do? Comedy That's another universal yearning Nearly everybody wants to be funny Esther is friendly and she has a good sense of humor That may be enough in her case Usually it isn't But she's much more personable than she was when she first came to Hollywood and she has infinitely more stage presence

SHE HAS NEW POISE

On the set of "Bathing Beauty," which provided her first important role about five years ago Esther was completely eclipsed by comic Red Skelton In the water it was different

Now she holds attention wherever she goes, even with all her clothes on Personal appearances, during the war and since, were responsible for most of this new "dry land" poise

Yet she's still a cautious girl "I keep waiting for the merry-go-round to stop and throw me off," she said a little sheepishly

Her background may have something to do with this feeling of insecurity. Esther's family never had much money. She remembers when an apple apiece was all she could offer her guests at a children's party. The acclaim she subsequently won as a champion swimmer was pleasant enough, but you don't get rich as an amateur athlete.

That's why even now, she and her radio announcer husband Ben Gage, live in a $10 000 shingled cottage There is a swimming pool, yes but only a tiny little swimming pool They're investing all their earnings and that means living simply, she said

ESTHER WILLIAMS

A moment later, however, she professed not to know how much money they make jointly The guessers put it at about $200,000 a year, may be more

TOUCHY ABOUT MONEY

Money is a touchy topic, and Esther prefers to talk about bathing suits Not long ago she had a brush with eastern swim suit makers about scanty-wantys — two piece French-type scraps of fabric Esther doesn't like them The easterners replied that she was behind the times, such suits haven't been made in America for two years

Esther talked right back They still make these "unflattering, immodest and impractical" models out here where Esther buys her suits, she insisted, and as far as she is concerned these two-piecers are appropriate only for the privacy of a home patio

"It isn't how much you reveal that's sexy," she declared, "it's a matter of curves Curves are more provocative than nudity. A one-piece suit makes a poor figure look better and a good figure look wonderful I always wear one-piece suits for the screen." (Not always in still photos, however).

Nobody could look much better in a bathing suit—any kind—than Esther Yet she wants a chance to act About 50 million men who have been going to her pictures for five or six years will have only

Contractors To Construct Five Homes

Permits Also Given For House Additions

Building permits for the construction of five new residences here were issued last week by the city of Mansfield. Builders here also plan a new commercial structure, the remodeling of four homes, additions to three commercial buildings and the construction of three garages.

Mrs. Mary Bell, 454 South Main street, for a $12,000, six-room brick veneer residence at 694 Coleman road, with Edward Schuler as contractor; George W. Hall, 549 Highland avenue, for a $10,000, five-room house at 711 Highland, with Schuler as contractor; Jacob Miller, 275 Orange street, for a $7,800, five-room house at 292 Myers avenue.

Anothony Kaufman, 14 South Adams street, for an $8,000, four room house at 367 Second avenue; and Irvin Daugherty, 114 Atherton avenue, for a $9,000 four-room house at 679 McPherson street, with Floyd Mack, Ashland road, as contractor.

Leo Slaughter, 127 North Adams street, for a $700 commercial storeroom at that address; the Church of Christ, 424 South Main street, for a $250 outside stairway at the church; Lemley Cleaners and Furriers, 473 Sherman place, for a $2,500 store front with Charold Construction company as contractors, and Buchan Auto Supply, 31 South Main street, for a $300 addition to a warehouse at 192 Oak street.

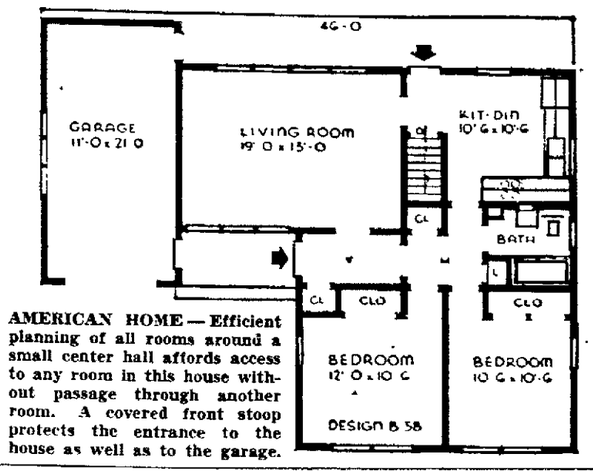
Madge Gerrell, 194 Rowland avenue, for a $600 garage; Martin Moysi, 341 First avenue, for a $150 garage, and R. F. Hertel, 79 Greenwood avenue, for a $750 garage.



AMERICAN HOME — Efficient planning of all rooms around a small center hall affords access to any room in this house without passage through another room. A covered front stoop protects the entrance to the house as well as to the garage.

'Oldest' Preacher Urges More Gospel For Church

NEW ORLEANS—(AP)—Dr. George Summey, who believes he's been a preacher longer than anyone else in the country, has this advice for the church: "More gospel and less streamlining."

"Preachers have turned to machinery rather than the gospel," says the white-haired, white-mustached, 95-year-old man who was ordained to the Presbyterian pulpit 75 years ago.

By "machinery" Dr. Summey explains:

"The churches organize adults, women, children, hold meetings, engage in devices to build the church by organization rather than by spirit. I believe in organization. But I insist there must be the power of the spirit of God. More gospel and less streamlining."

Dr. Summey was known as a "boy preacher" when he became pastor of the church in Bolivar, Tenn., in 1873. He was two weeks short of 20 years old.

"I outgrew that title rapidly," he says. "And now, I think I've been ordained longer than any minister of any denomination in the United States—I know longest of any Presbyterian."

He claims to be the oldest graduate of Davidson (N. C.) college, where he took a degree in 1840 at the age of 17; oldest graduate of Union Theological seminary in Virginia, class of 1873; and oldest member of the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity.

HELD MANY OFFICES

Since he took over that church in Bolivar, Dr. Summey has held many offices in the Presbyterian church of the United States—the southern branch of the denomination.

He was moderator of the church in 1825; chancellor of Southwestern Presbyterian university at Clarksville, Tenn.; (now at Memphis) 11 years; editor of the Presbyterian Quarterly, a theological review, six years; editor of the weekly Southwestern Presbyterian 16 years; pastor of the Third Presbyterian church in New Orleans 25 years; professor of systematic theology at Austin (Tex.) seminary 13 years.

Between these assignments — some of which overlapped—Dr. Summey served pastorates at Covington, Ky., Chester, S. C., and Graham, N. C.; as chairman of municipal boards of education in Chester and Clarksville; and on the board of education in Covington.

Dr. Summey was born in Asheville, N. C., in 1853, on June 3. He remembers the war between the states "very vividly."

"Once there weren't enough men to move the cannon into place when there was a report of a raid. Some of us boys had to mount horses and drive the cannon from one side of town to the other.""

His mother, the former Miss Rose Morrison, was a first cousin of General Stonewall Jackson.

AGAINST REUNION

Dr. Summey was eight years old when the Southern Presbyterians seceded from the northern branch in December 1861. He's "decidedly against" the proposed reunion of the two groups.

"I think our church is purer and safer theologically," he contends. "It has its own work to carry out. It can do more in separation than it can do in combination."

Dr. Summey retired eight years ago from the Austin professorship, his last full-time assignment.

Retain Cozy Kitchen Air

In spite of the added convenience sleek new equipment and ready-made cabinets give today's kitchens, some folks feel a little sad about the old-fashioned one that was such a cozy spot.

True, brilliant new linoleums, fabrics, paint and tile do a lot to counteract the antiseptic look of stark white or pale ivory appliances. But if you'd like to soften some of the sharp angles and hard surfaces without destroying efficiency, call in a carpenter who's handy with saw, says Practical Builder, Chicago. With a few original ideas of your own and his ingenuity you can give your modern kitchen new friendliness that will take it out of the class of mere food factory.

Try framing windows all around in wooden cornices with scalloped saw-tooth or scroll edges, or even composed of narrow lattice work. With or without sheer glass curtains they depart from the stiff pattern of unrelieved rectangles. Trade your ordinary half-glass door for a solid one painted a bright color.

Have your carpenter cut a small, glass covered window at eye-level in some unusual shape and you can still see who's knocking. Your back door could be a Dutch type, too, decorated with colorful designs. An interior door can repeat the same pattern.

W. E. Goode Named Head Of Area Insurance Group

Woodrow E. Goode, 23 Leppo lane, was elected president of the Mansfield-Ashland Life Underwriters at the last regular meeting of the group, for the summer, last week at the Ashland country club.

Goode, manager of the Mansfield branch Western and Southern Life Insurance company, came to Mansfield three years ago from Chicago and served as secretary-treasurer of the area life underwriters for two years and as vice president for one year.

Other officers elected at the meeting for the coming year were; Robert F. Horn, 206 Saxton road, first vice president; W. C. Leister, Ashland, second vice president, and Robert B. Meese, 28 Park avenue west, secretary.

World Gem Total Small

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— A diamond cube, nine feet on a side, would equal all the gem diamonds mined in the world since they were discovered 2,500 years ago.

New Issue Honors Three Feminists

Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Carrie Chapman Catt and Lucretia Mott will appear on the new 3 cent U.S. commemorative stamp honoring "100 Years of Progress of Women." The purple stamp will be placed on first day sale July 19 at Seneca Falls, N. Y., scene of the First Women's Rights convention in 1848.

Lucretia Mott's "A Declaration of Sentiments," delivered at the Seneca Falls convention, has often been called the Women's Bill of Rights. It was modelled on the Declaration of Independence. Elizabeth Stanton was instrumental in securing the passage in New York of a law giving property rights to married women. Carrie Chapman Catt, one of the leaders in the women's suffrage movement organized and was president of the International Woman Suffrage Alliance from 1904-1923.

Stamp collectors desiring first day cancellations may send addressed envelopes, not in excess of 10, to the Postmaster, Seneca Falls, N. Y., with postal note or money order to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed.

THE YOUNGER SET came into their own Friday evening when Westbrook Country club was taken over for a buffet supper and dance by sons and daughters of club members. These high school and college age youngsters, numbering nearly a hundred, arrived early in the evening and stayed late to enjoy the music of Tommy Van and his band.

Sweet young things in pastel sport frocks and some in dainty formals came dashing in on the arms of their escorts who were attired in the latest of sports apparel.

This was the first in a series of parties for the young people. It is anticipated there'll be another next month.

Hosts for the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Nail and Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Ritzenthaler.

Miss Riblett and Miss Lamme arrived in Mansfield a few days ago to make their home here with Mr. Riblett, 434 Overlook road. Miss Riblett was graduated from high school this month at Winnetka, Ill., and Miss Lamme has been a student at the University of Illinois.

Formal Open Church Rite Held For Berges-Moore Wedding

A HEAVY BRIDAL satin gown in an off-white shade was worn by Miss Katherine Elizabeth Berges for her marriage to Donald F. Moore of Butler Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the First English Lutheran church. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Theresa Berges, 376 Wayne street, and Mr. Moore's parents are Mr. and Mrs. William G. Moore of Butler.

Rev. Carveth P. Mitchell officiated for the double ring service following a program of nuptial music played by Mrs. Clayson Bell. Vocalist was Mrs. Wanda Hess Donnan.

Palms, ferns and beauty baskets of gladioli and carnations formed an attractive background for the formal service. Lighted seven branch candelabra illuminated the pretty scene. Vases of huckleberry were placed in the background and White satin bows marked the pews.

Given in marriage by her cousin, Arthur Wille, Chicago, Ill., Miss Berges approached the altar in a gown fashioned with a yoke of sheer marquisette with high round neckline and slightly off-the-shoulder effect. The yoke was edged with a white ruffle of Chantilly lace trimmed with seed pearls and crystal beads. The very full wide skirt extended into a long train. Her double circular bridal veil of English imported illusion was attached to a Queen's style crown of pearls, the design being in heart shape.

Mrs. Arthur Wille of Chicago served as matron of honor. Miss Marilyn Moore of Mansfield, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Peter Mihailoff, of this city, close friend of the bride, were the bridesmaids. They wore like styled gowns in nile green taffeta, made with boat type neckline, short cap sleeves, with which they wore detachable gauntlets, a low line torso, finished at the back with a double bustle effect, from which fell the very wide full skirt worn over stiff crinoline skirt. Their little bonnet type hats matched their gowns and were trimmed in daisies in yellow and white to match their bouquets.

They carried cascade bouquets of Shasta and yellow diaisies centered with pink carnations and tied with streamers of pink and yellow satin ribbons.

Mrs. Berges chose for her daughter's wedding a black print frock with black accessories and a gardenia corsage. Mrs. Moore wore a black print frock with white accessories and a corsage of gardenias.

Ushering the guests to their pews were Ross C. Plue, brother-in-law of the bride, Robert Burns and Fred Huess and William Huntsman, close friends of the bridegroom. Best man for Mr. Moore was Karl P. Maul, cousin of the groom.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at G. B. U. park for 100 guests. Refreshments were served buffet style from a table centered with a four tiered wedding cake and white appointments. Lighted tapers were placed on either side. Presiding at the table were Mrs. Ross Plue, Mrs. I. D. Malone, Mrs. Thomas Holland, Mrs. Martin Enderle and Mrs. Howard Richards.

Later in the day the couple left on a wedding trip with the bride attired in a rose gabardine dressmaker suit with brown accessories. Her straw hat was trimmed with rose colored flowers and she wore a white orchid corsage.

'Ruin Kings' Seek Scrap

Berlin Scavengers Play Perilous Game

BERLIN—(AP)—They call themselves the "kings of the ruins" Theirs is a perilous profession. Its dangers run from collapsing walls to bites from overgrown and ferocious rats.

They are the men—and boys—who make a profession of digging in Berlin's thousands of bomb-ruined buildings for such treasurers as scrap metal, plumbing and heating fixtures, furniture and wood.

This "treasurer under the rubble" is a much greater lure now than the old boyhood business of picking up scrap metal for sale to junkmen for a few pennies. In Germany's battered cities, it's more dangerous, too

The greatest peril to the salvage gangs is the collapse of walls. Hardly a day passes in Berlin but some one is killed or injured in such an accident Another ever present danger is the explosion of old bombs or other munitions in the ruins

SENTRIES POSTED

The salvagers have a system which requires that every working crew must always post a sentry to keep an eye on the weak walls.

"We also post a sentry to keep an eye on the rats" one salvager said. "We run across some pretty big ones in the ruins large and savage ones

"But no sentry could do anything about the terrible smells that assail us in our work They are the smells of the unburied dead of the bombing war, or dead animals and of stagnant pools

These probers of the ruins need no maps to find the treasurers they seek

"All one needs to know," said the foreman of one crew, "is the ordinary architecture of an apartment building. What we are after especially for salvage is the plumbing pipes and fixtures. Metal eaves troughs also fetch valuable returns.

"But the risks are numerous. There isn't only the danger of something falling on your head, you can also easily fall through the weakened floors A man working alone at salvage who met such an accident might have little chance of rescue and a good chance of joining the unburied dead of the bomb war."

PLANS DAIRY STORE

John Mulherin, 654 West Fourth street has taken out a permit to built a two room dairy store at the corner of Wood street and Glessner avenue. The probable cost of the structure was set at $5,000.

'TOWN' NEARS COMPLETION—Louis Gale, Mansfield sign painter, applies the finishing touches to houses which will be used in Mansfield's unique Safety Town. The buildings include stores, churches, residences and, of course, a filling station.

Unique Project Resumes After War Interruption

A Make-Believe Town to Teach Safety to Mansfield Children

A toyland to teach safety to pre-school age children will open here June 28 when Mansfield's unique "Safety Town" resumes operation after a five-year war period interruption.

For the last several months Frend C. Boals, city traffic commissioner and originator of "Safety Town," and the city recreation department has been setting up the project. Fruitation of their efforts will come when the program gets underway a week from tomorrow at Prospect school grounds.

A score of city officials and city employes have assisted in setting up Safety Town. In addition to Boals, these include Stanley W. Kamen, city recreation director; Jack LaRue, another recreation department official; members of the fire department, and the police department, whose financial aid makes possible resumption of the program.

Safety Town is based on the premise that accident prevention should be taught to children at the earliest possible age In the words of Boals, "Training for safety should start when the child makes his first trip to the neighbor's house or the grocery store."

"Driving an automobile or walking on our streets are tasks which to be done without mishap require skill acquired from training in proper habits," Boals said.

To teach those habits is the function of Safety Town. It is accomplished by a two-week course for approximately 20 children. The course is divided into two phases—a safety group and a game group. While the safety group is studying safety in Safety Town, the game group learn safety while playing games and hearing stories

PROJECT IS PORTABLE

Safety Town itself is a 120-foot square area containing streets, sidewalks, stop signs, a traffic light and miniature buildings. It is portable and will be moved to various sites during the summer.

Conceived by Boals, Safety Town is the result of the work of many individuals. The sidewalks, constructed of planking and two-by-four inch lumber, were built in eight-foot sections by the fire department at Central station.

"It's wonderful the way those firemen pitched in and constructed those sidewalks," Boals said. "They did most of the work in one afternoon, and it certainly was a big favor to us."

Most unusual portion of Safety Town is the town itself. Built of plywood, the "town" has everything from houses to filling stations. The houses stand about three or four feet high and are painted in bright colors.

It's the work of Roy Gale, a sign painter who maintains a shop at 31 West Williams street. Gale donated his services for the project and spent many hours in his workshop cutting out the buildings and painting the fronts.

REAL TRAFFIC LIGHT

Adding another realistic touch to Safety Town is an electrically-operated traffic light. It is a key piece of equipment for the traffic prevention project, in Boals' opinion, because "obeying traffic lights is a big factor in traffic accident prevention."

Safety Town also is equipped with 10 toy autos, which the children drive on the streets while receiving accident prevention lessons.

In operation, Safety Town will be something like this:

After registration on the first day, the children will be divided into two groups. On the second day, for example, the safety group will alternately ride in the cars on Safety's Town's "streets" while other children act as pedestrians. The game group will play games, study safety rules such as "the traffic light is your friend—obey it," and learn the meaning of red, green and yellow lights.

Each day the children will learn new safety rules and "act out" hazardous traffic situations and how to prevent them. On the fifth day, for example, the children will be taught to look both ways when a ball rolls out in the street while they're playing ball.

On the sixth day the game group learns the safety rule, "Always play away from parked cars." In all there are 10 safety rules. If children obey these 10 rules, Boals said, "it's much less likely that they'll be hurt in traffic accidents."

"We expect approximately 500 children to attend Safety Town," Boals said. "Attendance is voluntary, but I think every parent in Mansfield would want their small child to attend because it's organized for the benefit of the child's well-being."

ORGANIZED IN 1937.

Safety Town was organized in 1937 at Prospect park. The first class was 40 pre-school age children. In 1938 total attendance was 300, and in 1939 the project was operated on five city playgrounds with a total attendance of 500.

The supervisor this year will be Miss Margaret Jasinski of 419 Tremont street. Financial backing for the project comes from the Police Recreation club and the city recreation department.

Safety Town was conceived by Boals more than 10 years ago. The idea was copyrighted in 1940. Boals believes that memorization and "don't" orders have little effect in safety programs, because safety "is not a negative thing."

The program for pre-school children involves practice of "positive real-life situations." It makes a child conscious of his personal responsibility for safety.

"If you accept the principle that it is the function of modern education to prepare boys and girls to live happily, then the definite program of Safety Town is effective and essential," Boals emphasized.

Rev. Duffy to Speak At Lions' Meeting

Rev. John E. Duffy, survivor of the Bataan death march and veteran Army chaplain, will address Mansfield Lion club members Wednesday at 7 p.m. at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

U. S. Facing Critical Oil Deficit Soon

Committee Warns Of Possible Slash

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The country is walking such a tight rope for oil that one congressional committee is worried about the rate at which you and I are buying autos, oil furnaces, oil stoves. It is worried about new busses, airplanes and oil-burning locomotives.

These worries come out of the House armed services committee, which was asked to find out how we would stand on oil if the nation had to go to war.

The sub-committee which did the research was headed by Rep. Short (R-Mo), who was anything but happy about government controls imposed by the Roosevelt administration.

Even so, Short's committee now says that unless both oil and steel needs easing up within six months the government should step in and parcel steel out to the most important industries (oil being tops) and that it should ration the use of oil and gasoline.

That could mean less joy-riding for you and me, fewer refrigerators, washing machines, stoves and the like.

Short feels there is a pretty good chance of these shortages because Congress is getting ready to put more men into khaki. Under proposals from the secretary of defense, 402,000 new men would go into the Army, Navy and Air Force. They will need housing, food and machines.

CIVILIAN CUTBACK

It would have been easy enough to put 402,000 new men into the military in the '30s. Then the nation had closed down factories and mines. Now there are very few unemployed, and factories are humming.

If factories suddenly have to turn out more for the military, Short says, they would have to cut back on the things civilians need in order to meet military needs.

It's difficult to find an argument in Washington that says the Short committee is wrong.

Army witnesses before congressional committees counseled an air force with 66 groups because they feared hitting the living standards of civilians too hard. But Congress went ahead and determined on a 70-group force.

We now use 2,000,000,000 barrels of oil a year. We have to "scrounge" for that. If war comes Secretary of Defense Forrestal says we will be short 2,000,000 barrels of oil a day.

OIL CONSUMPTION

We have 2,000,000 more autos registered than in 1941. By late 1947 we had almost 2,500,000 more trucks than in 1941. We had 39,000 more busses, twice as many farm vehicles, and we're using twice the aviation gasoline.

In the first 11 months of 1947 we shipped more than a million oil furnaces to dealers. Each furnace uses an average 1,800 gallons of fuel oil a year.

The committee suggests these various aids for the situation:

1. Some oil men say they could get out more oil if they could get more steel. So the committee suggests an investigation into our steel capacity and needs.

2. It suggests we spend $20,000,000 in the next five years to hunt oil around Point Barrow, Alaska.

3. It says part of the oil found off the coast should be set aside for military reserves.

MORE EXPLORATION

4. It suggests the United States Geological Survey explore all the 820,000,000 acres of public lands. So far only 8,000,000 of those acres have been surveyed for oil and gas.

5. It thinks it better to use tankers to get oil from Saudi Arabia than to build the pipe line which is planned and which could become useless if war broke out in the Middle East.

6 It says Congress should finance research on synthetic oil but that we should not depend on synthetics for the immediate future.

7. It recommends steel be allocated to the natural gas industry, which now can't transport the gas it has because of a shortage of pipe. Gas now on hand but not going through pipes, it estimates, could save about 230,000,000 barrels of oil a year.

Junior Baseball Leagues Open Monday

Starter Gets Hit On Elbow

CLEVELAND — (AP) — league-leading Cleveland Indians, who haven't been getting much pitching lately, got plenty of it yesterday when Bob Muncrief and Russ Christopher combined for a brilliant three-hit shutout as the Indians downed the Philadelphia Athletics 4 to 0.

Munchief throttled the A's with three singles for the first seven innings, but was forced to retire after that stanza when a line drive from Hank Majeski's bat struck him on the elbow of his pitching arm. He was taken to a hospital for X-ray examination. Christopher took over for the final two innings and kept Philadelphia in check to complete the shutout.

MUNCRIEF

Eddie Joost singled to open the game, but from then until the seventh Muncrief set the A's down in one-two-three order, aided by two Cleveland double plays.

The A's threatened in the seventh when Joost was safe on Ken Keltner's bobble. Muncrief retired the next two batters, but Ferris Fain singled, sending Joost to second. Majeski then bounced a single off Muncrief's elbow. The ball bounced high toward shortstop Lou Boudreau, who failed to make the catch but Joost was out when he overran third. That was the A's only threat of the game.

The Indians picked up their first two runs in the third when Jim Hegan walked, moved to second on an infield out and scored on Dale Mitchell's single. Boudreau and Hank Edwards walked to fill the bases and Bill McCahan then walked Joe Gordon to force Mitchell across.

TWO DOUBLES

The Tribe collected their other two tallies in the fifth when Larry Doby doubled, Boudreau singled and Keltner doubled them home.

McCahan allowed the Indians only six hits but the Tribesmen utilized four of them in scoring.

Pat Seerey Leads Chicago To 9-to-5 Win

CHICAGO — (AP) — Pitcher Marino Pieretti and Outfielder Pat Seerey, two additions via recent trades, blended their efforts to aid the Chicago White Sox gain a 9-5 victory over Washington before 1,157 persons here yesterday.

The victory was Chicago's fourth in the past five games, the loss was Washington's seventh straight.

Seerey collected three singles in batting in as many runs. This spree increased his White Sox RBI total to 16 in 12 games since coming to Chicago from Cleveland.

GET 17 BLOWS

Taft Wright and Cass Michaels notched three hits apiece as Chicago amassed a total of 17 blows off starter Early Wynn and four other Washington pitchers. The Sox scored two runs in the second on doubles by Aaron Robinson, Luke Appling and Michaels to gain a lead they never lost.

Four hits off Earl Harrist, who was traded for Pieretti, added another pair in the third. The Sox settled for three runs on five hits in the sixth and two on Seerey's long single in the eighth.

Pieretti walked three Senators in the fourth before Al Kozar's fly accounted for one run and Jake Early singled for another. Earl Wooten's triple and Early's fly produced a third run in the seventh and Pieretti finally de-

Some Stuff About 1908 Mansfield Football Eleven

By Fred Tharp
(News-Journal Sports Editor)

THE FLYING WEDGE may be gone from football forever but stories of that and other formations will abound at the reunion of the fine 1908 Mansfield high school grid team today. . . . Members of that classy aggregation and its supporters will get together for the second time in the past seven years at Oak park. . . . They might be getting a little old for active sport—most of the men are in their late 50's—but it's a safe bet that sometime in the afternoon they will line up in the T-formation just to see how the old formation feels after all of these years. . . . That would put Earl "Pooch" Pollock under the center. . . . Pooch tells us that the '08 version of the Tygers also used the single wing but the "T" was it. . . . In those days, the teams did not huddle so Pollock called all plays while the eleven was in position. . . . The forward pass had just been injected into the game but all of the tosses were of the short variety. . . . Pooch tossed the aerials. . . . He believes the greatest change in the game in 40 years has been in the art of ozone pitching. . . . In '08 the ball was much "fatter" hardly adequate for passing. . . . One play in particular was Pollock's favorite. . . . He was the littlest fellow on the team at 142 while Pete Runyan, fullback, tipped the scales at 200 odd pounds. . . . Pete had a belt around his stomach with two handles, one on each side. . . . After a bit of hipper-dipper Runyan would blast the line and Pollock, with ball, would grab one of the handles and be pulled along behind. . . . Pooch recalls, "Sometimes Pete would move so fast I wouldn't even touch the ground."

FOOTBALL had been banned in Mansfield high in 1905 but was revived in 1908 with E L. Marting, Ohio Wesleyan, as coach. . . . The former Wesleyan footballer had his team working out for two or three weeks but four of the best prospects in school did not join until the day before the first game. . . . So they lost, and bad, to Bucyrus in the opener, 38 to 0. . . . That was the first and last defeat of the campaign. . . . George Trautman, president of the minor leagues, was captain and halfback on that Bucyrus club. . . . The grid sport may have been dormant at the high school but some of the youngsters knew a bit about the game. . . . Mansfield had a grade school program even in those days with the teams playing four or five games. . . . The first eight grades were in elementary buildings back 40 years ago. . . . The uniforms were quite a bit different in '08 but we always remember pictures of those hard rubber noseguards that most of the players wore. . . . They had a mouthpiece and were strapped to the head. . . . The guards were not a part of the helmet but they sure saved one's face from being messed up.

SUBSTITUTES were few and far between 40 years ago so 14 to 18 men made up a grid squad. . . . The starting lineup in 1908 went something like this: LE, Roger Au (contractor); LT, Byron McCready (Detroit broker); LG, Albert Schad (farmer); C, Jim Carrigan (Westinghouse); RG, Bill Black (attorney); RT, Raymond Lantz (Cleveland businessman); RE, Ed Longsdorf (Empire Steel); QB, Pollock; LH, Judson Super (now in California); RH, Bob Shireman (Massillon); FB, Runyan (Cleveland). . . . Schad later played for Ohio State while Shireman was the team's punter. . . . The sub list ran like this: backs, Alan Tappan (Tappan Stove); Norman Stoodt (Detroit banker); Dr. Martin Jelliff, deceased, and Tom Scott (Mansfield Hay); guards, Frank Cave, deceased, and Walter Oswalt (salesman); tackle, Charles Marshall (New York), and end, Dio "Pickles" Shaw (Cleveland). . . . Marting coached high school ball in Akron for many years after leaving Mansfield. . . . He's now in the real estate business but has promised to be on hand today. . . . The 1908 gridders met once before, in 1941, and plan to make the reunion an annual affair.

Bill Johnson Leads Yanks To Win Over Browns, 10-5

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—Led by Billy Johnson, who drove in seven runs, the New York Yankees yesterday defeated the St. Louis Browns 10-5 to even the series at one victory apiece.

The Yankee third sacker slammed two home runs, one with the bases loaded. Johnson hit his first off starter and loser Ned Garver with one mate aboard in the sixth to feature a four-run attack. His second round tripper came in the ninth off Lefty Clem Dreisewerd with the bases loaded.

Ed Lopat received benefit of the Yankees' 10-hit assault to record his fourth victory against five losses. The triumph enabled the Yankees to move within a game and a half of the second place Philadelphia Athletics.

Babe Ruth was presented with a Sporting News trophy in recognition for service to the youth of America before the game.

Legion Ball Club Battles Shelby Nine

Rained out of its scheduled game at Marion yesterday, the Mansfield American Legion junior baseball team will try for its third victory of the season today at 2:30 p.m. at Shelby.

The game was originally scheduled for Liberty park but was moved to Shelby yesterday. However, if the weather makes the Shelby diamond unplayable, the contest will be moved back to Liberty park.

Lou Gregorio, Senior high mound star, will get the starting call from Coach Dewey Durant. Lou pitched two no-hitters for the Tygers. The Mansfield juniors have beaten the Sandusky juniors and Sons of Herman Colts so far.

Durant has named the following starting lineup: Buck McKeever, 1b; Cy Elsass, rf; Mike Gruber, 3b; Joe Distl, 2b; Chuck Watts, ss; Ken McCally, c; Ray Bader, cf; Bob Hartnett, lf and Gregorio.

Two of the Mansfield regulars —Jack Bosh and Charlie Marchant—are out with injuries. Bosh hurt his elbow high jumping while Marchant has a bad wrist.

Sain Gives Reds Only Six Hits In Braves' 5-0 Win

BOSTON —(AP)— Right-hander Johnny Sain gave the Boston Braves a half-game first place lead by shutting out the Cincinnati Reds, 5-0, with a six-hit performance last night before a 24,425 crowd.

Cincinnati's Hank Sauer, who leads the National league in runs batted in with 51 and home runs with 19, was ejected by Umpire Larry Geotz after arguing over a called third strike in the first inning.

Short of infielders through injuries before the game began, Cinci Manager Johnny Nuen sent veteran Augie Galan to left field, outfielder Litwhiler to third and moved Grady Hatton from third to short.

Mansfield Grays to Battle Galion Merchants Today

The Mansfield Grays will send their revamped lineup after a third straight victory at 2.30 p.m. this afternoon when they entertain the Galion Merchants at Blue Goose field.

Manager Lefty Deeds revealed yesterday that he planned to start Don Hardy, former American Legion pitcher who recently returned here from a hitch of minor league ball. Hardy spent the 1947 season with Janesville in the Wisconsin State league but left the team this spring with a sore arm. His wing is reportedly in good condition now.

Yesterday's scheduled contest at the Ohio State Reformatory was called off because of wet grounds.

STICKS TO TEAM

Deeds plans to stick to the lineup which won last Sunday's game with the exception of the pitcher and one spot in the outfield. A new outfielder, Guest, will probably be given a starting berth in right field.

The batting order follows: Shelly Swank, 2b; Kenny Funk, ss; Red Hamman, 3b; Dean Hahn, 1b; Foster Burgraff, lf; Bob Bogantz, cf; Guest, rf; Joe Miller, c and Hardy.

Three Players Get All Votes In American

Voting for the American and National league teams end on July 5. Results of the N-J poll are being forwarded to the Chicago Tribune, official clearing house for the selections. A ballot will be found elsewhere in the sport section.

Lou Boudreau, Cleveland's manager-shortstop; Ted Williams, Boston Red Sox and Joe DiMaggio, New York Yankees, are the unanimous choices. DiMaggio led the poll last year while Boudreau is the current national leader.

Eight players, including Charley Keller, Tom Henrich and Johnny Lindell of the Yankees, have been named for the third American outfield post. Henrich is the leader with Pat Mullin of the Tigers second.

SLIGHT LEADS

Joe Gordon and Ken Keltner of the Indians have slight leads in the race for second and third base. Gordon tops Bobby Doerr, Boston and Keltner is ahead of George Kell, Detroit. Kell was a winner last year.

George McQuinn, Yankee first sacker and Jim Hegan, Cleveland catcher are the other leaders. Hegan has only a slight margin over Yogi Berra of the Yanks and Buddy Rosar of the Athletics.

The National league leaders are: Johnny Mize, New York, first; Eddie Stanky, Boston, second; Bob Elliott, Boston, third; Marty Marion, St. Louis, short; Ralph Kiner, Pittsburgh; Stan Musial, St. Louis and Hank Sauer, Cincinnati, outfield and Phil Masi, Boston, catcher.

Boudreau is holding the spot as most popular player in the National poll, with 11,447 votes. Williams, the early leader in the poll, holds second place with 10,955. Joe DiMaggio is third with 10,714. More than 30,000 votes have been cast.

Chicago Cubs Beat Brooklyn Again, 5 to 2

BROOKLYN — (AP) — Andy Pafko and Bill Nicholson, Chicago's two big guns, drove in five runs between them yesterday to lead the Cubs to their second straight victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers, 5-2.

Pafko enjoyed a perfect day at the plate, collecting five hits in five times at bat. He hammered in three runs. Nicholson cracked his sixth home run with one mate aboard in the eighth inning, and doubled in the ninth.

YOUNGSTER WINS

Backed by 13 hits, Bob Rush, 22-year-old righthander, pitched his first complete game of the season to register his second triumph. He has lost four. He walked none and allowed only seven hits, including Gil Hodges second homer in as many days.

Harry Taylor started for the Dodgers and was charged with the loss. Joe Hatten finished.

Plate Umpire Dusty Boggess suffered a possible collar bone fracture when struck by a foul tip off Ed Miksis' bat in the third inning. He was sent to hospital for x-rays.

Louis Meets Joe Walcott Wednesday

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK — (AP)—The 1948 Joe Louis, only a carbon copy of the original brown bomber, makes his 25th and possibly last world heavyweight title defense Wednesday night at the Yankee stadium against Jersey Joe Walcott, who lost a disputed decision to the champ last December.

This carbon of the original still may have enough to flatten Walcott, an ageless pappy guy from Camden, N. J. At least the odds on the champ to win linger close to 5 to 12. It may approach 1 or 2 or less by ring time.

Past performance sheets favor the bomber who never failed to knock out a troublesome opponent in a return bout. Willie Davis, Lee Ramage, Nate Brown, Max Schmeling, Bob Pastor, Arturo Godoy, Abe Simon, Buddy Baer and Billy Corn know all about that. Walcott professes to be undisturbed.

MIGHT DRAW MILLION

Because of the tremendous controversy following their first meeting in Madison Square Garden, this fight figures to draw close to a million dollars. If it does go into seven figures it will be the ninth million dollar gate.

Promoter Mike Jacobs of the Twentieth Century Sporting Club, who, like Louis, says he will retire after this fight, admits he has over $700.000 in the till with steady business every day. The crowd is expected to be about 55,000 with reserved seats ranging from $50 to $10.

Louis, who gets 40 per cent of the net as compared to 20 for Walcott, is "the big if" of this scrap. Holder of the title longer than any man in history—11 years and a day by fight time since he knocked out Jimmy Braddock in Chicago in 1937—the champ has not been too impressive in his training chores. However, he insists "I'll win quick."

Sparring partners have hit him repeatedly with right hand shots, the kind that Walcott used to dump the bomber twice in December. The Louis punching power, one of the most destructive in the annals of sport, remains a mystery and will remain so until the first gong.

LOST PUNCH?

Some maintain that he has lost his punch. They draw that conclusion from the fact that Louis clubbed Walcott repeatedly in the ninth round of their first fight but never floored him.

The 34-year-old challenger (both are the same age), has been boxing since May 1 in preparation for this long-awaited chance at the title. He has been fighting since 1930 but quit six times because he couldn't make enough money to feed his growing family until Felix Bocchicchio agreed to "sponsor" him in 1944. With Felix guaranteeing a weekly income, Walcott began to win consistently and finally was maneuvered into last December's shot as a 10 to 1 underdog.

Twenty-nine junior baseball games this week will start Mansfield on a new era in sports.

Twenty-four teams in three age groups are ready to swing into action in the most pretentious junior ball program ever attempted in Mansfield. The program is under the joint sponsorship of the Hot Stove league and the Recreation Department.

CHATLAIN'S CZAR

Ed Chatlain, an all-time athletic great at Senior high and Wittenberg, is the "czar" of three leagues. Stan Kamen and Fred LaRue of the "rec" department, have aided Chatlain in setting up the leagues. The youngsters have worked at Chatlain-conducted baseball schools for two weeks getting ready for the season.

Teams will play two games a week with the Elementary (under 13) league playing at 10:30 a. m.; Junior (13-14-15) league at 3:30 p. m., and Major (16-17-18) league at 6 p. m.

Although 24 teams are all set to go, Chatlain announced last night that he hopes to add three to five teams within the next week. All youngsters, who are not on any of the squads, and wish to play junior ball should contact Chatlain as soon as possible. He will form enough teams to take care of all interested athletes.

Giant Homers Defeat Cards Easily, 10 to 1

NEW YORK —(AP)— Using their most potent weapon to end a five-game losing streak, the New York Giants yesterday lofted four home runs into the stands to overcome the St. Louis Cardinals 10-1.

The quartet of round trippers gave the pounding Polo grounds 11 home runs in three days and 63 for the season.

Behind the heavy barrage, Clint Hartung had an easy time coasting to his fifth victory. The tall righthander spaced eight hits and held the mighty Stan Musial hitless.

The Giants went to work early on Red Munger, scoring in the second inning when big John Mize walloped his 12th home run into the upper rightfield stands. A walk and a pair of singles by Enos Slaughter and Ron Northey enabled the Cards to knot the score at 1-1 in the fourth.

GETS TWO HOMERS

Sid Gordon's tenth home run followed by doubles by Billy Rigney and Whitey Lockman and a single by Buddy Kerr gave the Giants three runs in their half of the fourth.

The Giants added another run off relief pitcher Gerry Staley in the fifth. Willard Marshall joined the home run brigade, collecting his seventh round tripper in the seventh with two aboard. Gordon smacked his eleventh of the season and his second of the day in the eighth. It came with one on.

Munger, who now has failed to go the route since May 18, was charged with his sixth loss. He has won three.

Wins Third In Row

DETROIT — (AP) — Porter's Broom, a four-year-old sprinter, raced over a sloppy track to post his third straight victory in the $10,000 LaSalle Handicap feature event at Detroit fairgrounds yesterday.

Feller Nixes Extra Activities

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Bob Feller says he'll stick strictly to pitching from now on.

The erstwhile ace of the Cleveland Indians' mound corps announced that he is curtailing all his activities, including between-game physical exercises, in an effort to recover his mastery.

"I have notified my commercial sponsors that for the rest of the summer I will be unable to appear at their various awards luncheons or any other public functions," Feller said.

Bob hasn't won a game since May 19 and has dropped five in a row for an unimpressive season record of five wins and seven defeats. He makes his next start today against the Philadelphia Athletics.

Feller repeated that he never has considered his various connections outside of baseball a handicap in his work for the Indians.

"But other people think they are," he added, "and I'm certainly willing to make the test. I'm willing to try anything to regain winning form. Some of the folks on whom I cancelled appointments didn't like it. But my appearances wouldn't have much value to them or anyone else if I couldn't start winning again."

He has cancelled two autograph parties in book stores handling his latest book, "How to Pitch," and also has withdrawn from his activities for a confectionery firm.

"I'm not even thinking about barnstorming. In the first place, unless I win some games, no one would be interested in watching me barnstorm. In the second place, if I can carry my share of the pitching load, we'll be in the fight for the pennant. And I've said it a thousand times if I've said it once—I'd rather pitch in one world series game than make the most profitable barnstorming trip in history."

For the past fifteen years the number one Ohio trapshooter, and probably the best in the country, has been Joe Hiestand, 43-year-old farmer from Hillsboro.

Crackshot Joe has won, at the Grand American alone, five all-around championships, four North American clay target (16 yards, 200 targets) titles and two doubles championships.

To win the five all-around titles, covering 16-yard, handicap and doubles, he missed only 117 of 4,400, in the 16-yard races he missed only three of 800, and in the picturesque doubles where two targets are tossed at once, he dropped only 11 of 200. He once broke 1174 targets in a row from 16 yards, 900 of them at the Grand American, for a record that no one has approached.

Ohio has the best and it also has the most trapshooters. Of the 10,731 registered shooters—10,433 men and 298 women—this state has one tenth or 1,160 clay target busters.

Trapshooting in this country is gaining tremendously as a popular sport. In the past year the nation has added 3,515 new registered shooters.

Farm Tools Plays Ideal In Feature

Sixth week's schedule in Mansfield's league softball program will feature several top-flight games, although only one will be between unbeaten aggregations.

However, the six leagues boast only eight perfect record teams. Three more dropped off the list last week.

Possibly the top encounter will be the Industrial league joust Wednesday between Farm Tools and Ideal Electric. The Toolmen, defending loop champs, have won five in a row while Ideal has four wins and one defeat. Ideal lost its first last week to unbeaten Tappan Stove.

IMPROVING TEAM

League-leading Komito's Clothes tangles with second-place Greystone Nite club in the Independent feature Tuesday. Komito's won the first encounter between the two teams, 12 to 0, but Greystone is a much improved club.

Friday night, Veterans of Foreign Wars meets Moose lodge. Both have won four of five games in the Club league.

Johns park and North Lake battle today at Liberty park. Johns has won three Park loop tests while North Lake has two wins and no losses.

Other undefeated teams are: Ohio Brass, Girls' league; Park Avenue Baptist and Four Square Gospel, Church league.

Know Your Golf Shots—Barron

By HERMAN BARRON
(AP Newsfeatures)

Putting is very important, in fact it's the most important shot in golf. It's on the greens that golf championships are won and lost.

Almost every pro star putts differently. I find the best method in putting is with an open stance.

Putting Grip

I use the same overlapping grip in putting as in all my other shots. The only exception is that my left hand is turned under slightly with the back of my hand almost in a direct line with the cup.

LAST OF A SERIES

Be smooth in your putting and grip the club very lightly. You can attain a smooth putting touch with a long, slow backswing of the left hand on a straight line and then swing the clubhead through the ball with right hand.

I use a very heavy putter because I was putting short until five years ago when I had 3 or 4 ounces of brass added to the back of the putter. But the slow, smooth backswing works well even if your putter is on the light side.

Four Toledo Men Remain In Publinx

By FRITZ HOWELL

TOLEDO—(AP)—The Ohio public links golf championship race evolved into an all-Toledo affair yesterday as a soldier, a bricklayer, a tavern operator and a spark plug inspector from the Maumee city battled their way into the semi-finals of the pay-as-you-go match play tournament.

Geisler, a youthful bricklayer, made a great comeback to eliminate another Akronite, Steve Kungle, 2 up.

SEEKS THIRD STRAIGHT

Third round results: Nowack, Cleveland, defeated Bohardt, Dayton, 1 up; Hlas, Akron, defeated Elmer Zieske, Cleveland, 1 up; Mann, Toledo, defeated Halter, Youngstown, 3 and 2; Kungle, Akron, defeated Holmes, Toledo, 4 and 3; Deisler, Toledo, defeated Leskosky, Youngstown, 2 and 1; Marks, Dayton, defeated Pawlicki, Toledo, 3 and 2; Krochmalny, Toledo, defeated Reese, Akron, 4 and 3.

The Mansfield Moose lodge softball team, mired deep in the cellar of the Moose Travelling league, will be hosts to two contests at Johns park this afternoon.

Mansfield will meet the Bucyrus Moose at 1 p. m. and take on Carey immediately after. The three team league plays every Sunday with one city being host to the other two in a double-header. The schedule:

June 27, at Bucyrus; July 4, at Mansfield; July 11, at Carey; July 18, at Bucyrus; July 25, at Mansfield; August 1, at Carey; August 8, at Bucyrus.

Bcyrus has won its only two league starts, Carey has a two and one record, and Mansfield has dropped three contests.

Ray Robinson May Not Fight Monday Night

CHICAGO — (AP) — When—and if—Welterweight Champion Ray Robinson gets into the ring at Comiskey park Monday night, he'll be ready for raw meat, literally and figuratively.

Robinson belatedly is scheduled to take on 21-year-old Bernard Docusen of New Orleans in his third title defense, IF:

1. The champion can make the 147 title poundage at Monday noon's second weigh-in for the fight.

2. He doesn't call the whole thing off and go back in a huff to New York, causing the Illinois Athletic commission to declare his title vacant.

3. It doesn't rain again as it did last Thursday night when the 15-round title go originally was scheduled.

The commission scales began a night-marish contraption for Robinson last Thursday noon when he peeled off everything except his skin to hit 147 on the head—and that after starving and "sweating out" for several days.

If it rains Monday night, the commission probably would demand that a new date be set. That would be a calamitous blow to Promoter Irving Kovin, who says he has between $40,000 and $50,000 worth of tickets already sold which would have to be refunded. Kovin, hoping for a $100,000 gate, figures the postponement already has cost hime $10,000 extra in expenses.

Gorman-Rupp Goes Against Willard 9

Mansfield Gorman-Rupp will meet what looks to be its stiffest opponent—the Willard Elks—under the lights here Monday in a game that could be the turning point in the North Central Ohio Inter-City league race.

In piling up its undefeated record in five games, Gorman-Rupp has beaten every league team except Willard. The two teams battled 16 innings to a 1-1 tie at Willard on June 10. Bob Smith, ace Elk hurler, fanned thirty batters in the contest.

Since Ashland has dropped from contention, the Mansfielders could have a runaway of the race if they show they can beat Willard. On the other hand, the Elks have been beaten only once in three starts would be near the top with a victory.

Bobby Regula, the bell-wether of the Gorman-Rupp staff will undoubtedly get the mound call in tomorrow's game, scheduled for 8:30 p.m. at Gorman-Rupp field.

You must be a citizen of the United States, and a man of high moral character, able to meet the necessary physical requirements.

To take advantage of this unusual privilege, you may submit your application to the Commanding General of the Army area in which you live. If you are selected, you will be enlisted in the Army as Staff Sergeant. If you have not had basic training or its equivalent, you will be given this training before entering Officer Candidate School.

If you are a successful candidate, you will be commissioned as Second Lieutenant in the Officers Reserve Corps and placed on active duty for two years, during which time you may compete for a Regular Army Commission. Should you fail to complete the course successfully, you will be released from the Army.

The opportunity to qualify for Officer Candidate School is, and has been, open to men in the Army. Farm Tools Plays Ideal In Feature

Sixth week's schedule in Mansfield's league softball program will feature several top-flight games, although only one will be between unbeaten aggregations.

However, the six leagues boast only eight perfect record teams. Three more dropped off the list last week.

Possibly the top encounter will be the Industrial league joust Wednesday between Farm Tools and Ideal Electric. The Toolmen, defending loop champs, have won five in a row while Ideal has four wins and one defeat. Ideal lost its first last week to unbeaten Tappan Stove.

IMPROVING TEAM

League-leading Komito's Clothes tangles with second-place Greystone Nite club in the Independent feature Tuesday. Komito's won the first encounter between the two teams, 12 to 0, but Greystone is a much improved club

Friday night, Veterans of Foreign Wars meets Moose lodge. Both have won four of five games in the Club league.

Johns park and North Lake battle today at Liberty park. Johns has won three Park loop tests while North Lake has two wins and no losses.

Other undefeated teams are: Ohio Brass, Girls' league; Park Avenue Baptist and Four Square Gospel, Church league.

By HERMAN BARRON
(AP Newsfeatures)

Putting is very important, in fact it's the most important shot in golf. It's on the greens that golf championships are won and lost.

Putting Grip

I use the same overlapping grip in putting as in all my other shots. The only exception is that my left hand is turned under slightly with the back of my hand almost in a direct line with the cup.

LAST OF A SERIES

Be smooth in your putting and grip the club very lightly. You can attain a smooth putting touch with a long, slow backswing of the left hand on a straight line and then swing the clubhead through the ball with right hand.

I use a very heavy putter because I was putting short until five years ago when I had 3 or 4 ounces of brass added to the back of the putter. But the slow, smooth backswing works well even if your putter is on the light side.

Four Toledo Men Remain In Publinx

By FRITZ HOWELL

TOLEDO—(AP)—The Ohio public links golf championship race evolved into an all-Toledo affair yesterday as a soldier, a bricklayer, a tavern operator and a spark plug inspector from the Maumee city battled their way into the semi-finals of the pay-as-you-go match play tournament.

Chiaverini, the winner in 1942 and 1947, meets Mann and Krochmalny meets Geisler in this morning's 18 hole semi-finals. The winners meet in the afternoon at 18 holes for the championship.

Mann, playing against Andy Hlas, cigar chewing sharpshooter from Akron, fired four straight birdies from the 11th to the 14th holes to win the match 5 and 3.

Geisler, a youthful bricklayer, made a great comeback to eliminate another Akronite, Steve Kungle, 2 up.

SEEKS THIRD STRAIGHT

Chiaverini, seeking to become the first to win the fee course crown three years in a row, had a great battle with Johnny Nowack of Cleveland before triumphing one up.

Krochmalny, the 1938 champion, had a tough time with Joe Marks of Dayton.. The Toledo tavern operator won, 2 and one.

Third round results: Nowack, Cleveland, defeated Bohardt, Dayton, 1 up, Hlas, Akron, defeated Elmer Zieske, Cleveland, 1 up; Mann, Toledo, defeated Halter, Youngstown, 3 and 2; Kungle, Akron, defeated Holmes, Toledo, 4 and 3, Deisler, Toledo, defeated Leskosky, Youngstown, 2 and 1; Marks, Dayton, defeated Pawlicki, Toledo, 3 and 2; Krochmalny, Toledo, defeated Reese, Akron, 4 and 3.

Moose Softballers Play Two League Opponents Today

The Mansfield Moose lodge softball team, mired deep in the cellar of the Moose Travelling league, will be hosts to two contests at Johns park this afternoon.

Mansfield will meet the Bucyrus Moose at 1 p. m. and take on Carey immediately after. The three team league plays every Sunday with one city being host to the other two in a double-header. The schedule:

June 27, at Bucyrus; July 4, at Mansfield; July 11, at Carey; July 18, at Bucyrus, July 25, at Mansfield; August 1, at Carey; August 8, at Bucyrus.

Bcyrus has won its only two league starts, Carey has a two and one record, and Mansfield has dropped three contests.

Shelby Nines Play

SHELBY — The Shelby Blues semi-pro baseball team will meet the Shelby Settlement outfit at 2 p. m. today on the latter team's diamond.

Ray Robinson May Not Fight Monday Night

CHICAGO — (AP) — When—and if—Welterweight Champion Ray Robinson gets into the ring at Comiskey park Monday night, he'll be ready for raw meat, literally and figuratively.

Robinson belatedly is scheduled to take on 21-year-old Bernard Docusen of New Orleans in his third title defense, IF:

1. The champion can make the 147 title poundage at Monday noon's second weigh-in for the fight.

2 He doesn't call the whole thing off and go back in a huff to New York, causing the Illinois Athletic commission to declare his title vacant.

3. It doesn't rain again as it did last Thursday night when the 15-round title go originally was scheduled.

The commission scales began a night-marish contraption for Robinson last Thursday noon when he peeled off everything except his skin to hit 147 on the head—and that after starving and "sweating out" for several days.

If it rains Monday night, the commission probably would demand that a new date be set. That would be a calamitous blow to Promoter Irving Kovin, who says he has between $40,000 and $50,000 worth of tickets already sold which would have to be refunded. Kovin, hoping for a $100,000 gate, figures the postponement already has cost hime $10,000 extra in expenses.

Dick Schwab

(News-Journal Outdoor Writer)

For the past fifteen years the number one Ohio trapshooter, and probably the best in the country, has been Joe Hiestand, 43-year-old farmer from Hillsboro.

Crackshot Joe has won, at the Grand American alone, five all-around championships, four North American clay target (16 yards, 200 targets) titles and two doubles championships.

To win the five all-around titles, covering 16-yard, handicap and doubles, he missed only 117 of 4,400, in the 16-yard races he missed only three of 800, and in the picturesque doubles where two targets are tossed at once, he dropped only 11 of 200. He once broke 1174 targets in a row from 16 yards, 900 of them at the Grand American, for a record that no one has approached,

Ohio has the best and it also has the most trapshooters. Of the 10,731 registered shooters—10,433 men and 298 women—this state has one tenth or 1,160 clay target busters.

Trapshooting in this country is gaining tremendously as a popular sport. In the past year the nation has added 3,515 new registered shooters.

Looks like we've got time on our hands—slow time.

Mark This Down as a Mutter with Meaning: The two most significent books of the year are Our Plundered Planet by Fairfield Osborn and Malabar Farm by our own Louis Bromfield Everyone but children and adults should avoid reading them Osborn tells how we are tossing away our birthright by ruining the earth. Bromfield explains how we can keep our birthright and have the mess of pottage, too.

It appears that big game hunting is ruined in Mansfield You don't have to hunt to find a big game now.

NOW OPEN TO HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES

THIS is important news to every young man from 20½ to 28 who has graduated from high school or who can pass equivalent education examinations. Under a new ruling, you may now enlist in the U. S. Army for the specific purpose of attending Officer Candidate School, provided the quotas are not filled.

You must be a citizen of the United States, and a man of high moral character, able to meet the necessary physical requirements.

To take advantage of this unusual privilege, you may submit your application to the Commanding General of the Army area in which you live. If you are selected, you will be enlisted in the Army as Staff Sergeant. If you have not had basic training or its equivalent, you will be given this training before entering Officer Candidate School.

If you are a successful candidate, you will be commissioned as Second Lieutenant in the Officers Reserve Corps and placed on active duty for two years, during which time you may compete for a Regular Army Commission. Should you fail to complete the course successfully, you will be released from the Army

The opportunity to qualify for Officer Candidate School is, and has been, open to men in the Army. But never before during peacetime has such a remarkable opportunity to become a commissioned officer been open to civilian high school graduates. Get all the facts about it today at your U.S. Army and U.S. Air Force Recruiting Station.
